Thursday.

My Own Dear Sweetheart:-

Will you let me write to you twice in the same day. I wrote you a short letter this morning and sent by Evelyn and as I suppose some one will take your father to the train in the morning. I am going to write you again this evening. I told Evelyn to tell you I was going to look for you to come home Sunday. I do not expect I coued get away, as much as I would like and luv to see you I coued hardly go way Sunday as the boys will get in that day, and there is so much sickness I coued hardly git away anyhow. Dranit one in the world, I am so anxious to see you and talk to you.

You will never know how much I lov you and how much you have entered into my life and how I long to make you happy in every way and I want just as far as possible to have every thing and do every thing just as you, dear, would like to have it. You have had so sweet and good about every thing and that makes me all the more anxous to please my darling girl in every way I can. I do hope you will come in Sunday so I can see and talk to you. Oh! how I do love you, dear heart.

Susie left to-day. I suppose Evelyn has told you a great deal about Robert. He keeps them laughing most of the time.

I hope for a good long sweet letter to-morrow from the dearest girl in the world.

God bless and keep you for me.

Yours
M. C. O
