TEXAS TECHNOLOGICAL COLLEGE 1923 - 1963

ACADEMIC DEVELOPMENT was continued with the opening of Tech's new library at the beginning of the fall semester, 1962. The formal dedication for the building, largest on Tech's campus, was conducted Oct. 21, 1962. The library, built at a cost of $2 million, has 72 columns and 68 arches in five stories and a basement larger than this football field. It is completely air-conditioned and has carefully engineered lighting throughout. The library's academically vital facilities include 500,000 volumes now open to users, with an ultimate capacity for 800,000 volumes.

The third generation of a family is now represented on the management team of Furr's, started first in 1904 by Mr. C. W. Furr in Kirkland, Texas (near Childress) with his mercantile store. First expansion was Mr. Furr's acquisition of a string of stores in Amarillo in 1925; the opening of stores in and near Lubbock by Mr. Roy Furr beginning in 1929; and the headquartering of all Furr's operation at Lubbock in 1958. There are now 65 supermarkets in 3 states and 13 cafeterias in 4 states.

EDUCATIONAL AND ATHLETIC SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAM

Two handsome plaques are displayed on the campus—in the Athletic Department's lobby located at Jones Stadium and at the main entrance of Lubbock Municipal Coliseum. Each plaque, 44"x60" in size, presents the names of 72 sponsors.

Instituted in 1958, this scholarship program provides each year to more than 90 young men with athletic and academic abilities the opportunity for a college education. Through the program, which is supervised by the faculty sub-committee on athletic scholarships and supported by the Red Raider Club, many deserving athletes have been prepared as leaders in the civic and business life of West Texas and the nation upon their graduation.

Enthusiastically welcomed by business leaders over the Southwest and other friends of the college, the program carries the endorsement of athletic governing bodies and provides a stabilizing athletic program for Texas Technological College.

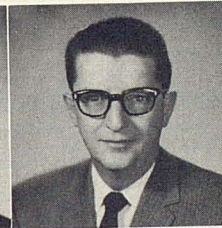

your support is recognized in Bronze Plaques

A separate engraved name plate for each sponsored scholarship appears on each of the Appreciation Plaques in recognition of the valued support of Texas Tech's athletic program by individuals, community Red Raider Clubs and business enterprises.

Tech Union Has Stimulating Entertainment Slated

The tenth anniversary year of the opening of Texas Tech's Student Union will continue this fall semester with a diversity of "big names" and special programs.

For instance, the Union's first Special Event, Oct. 25, will present one of the foremost acting personalities, Hans Conreid, in a program touching on all phases of the stage.

The Fine Arts Festival, Nov. 10-19, featuring "Form in the Arts," will include films, exhibits, concerts, lectures, a play and on Nov. 15 guest performer Peter Nero, pianist of concert theaters and supper clubs, playing jazz and the classics. Nov. 12 and 13 will be highlight days, with the showing of the widely-acclaimed Stratford Ontario version of "Oedipus Rex" in color.

The Select Film series for fall will include "Last Year at Marienbad" Oct. 11 and 13; and George Orwell's "1984" Dec. 6 and 8. On Dec. 7 the "Raider Rambles," Tech talent show, will be presented in the Union Ballroom.

The Special Event for December will present "The National Players" in Lubbock Municipal Auditorium. The players, the longest running classical repertory company in the country, will present either "The Taming of the Shrew" or "Oedipus Rex."

Attractions for the Spring semester will include the Clebanoff Strings April 15 in the Municipal Auditorium.

The Tech Union was officially opened a little more than ten years ago, in March of 1953. Its opening was the culmination of years of endeavor by Union advocates including Dean of Student Life James G. Allen, who originally suggested a Student Union in 1928, and W. Conner Cole, manager of the Tech bookstore, who in 1949 promoted the idea of issuing bonds to construct the building.

For five generations of students the Tech Bookstore has served as the only meeting place. Then in 1947 the College learned that it might have some army surplus buildings, if they could transport them to the campus.

Tech requested three, which were set between the Administration Building and the Music Building. One was leased to a commercial firm for a cafeteria. The other two were joined together for a recreation hall.

Dean Allen undertook to raise about $25,000 from townspeople to make the "Rec Hall" a usable student center, and Lubbock citizens responded graciously.

It was following this that Conner Cole conceived the idea of turning Bookstore profits from a "general fund" into a permanent Union building fund, and issuing bonds in addition.

Tech's Board of Directors approved the building plans in 1950, and the cornerstone for the building was laid in October, 1952.

The finished structure in 1953 contained a ballroom to accommodate 400 couples, a snack bar to seat 48 persons, a lounge area, three meeting rooms and a student organizational workshop.

Another big step for the Union was taken in 1957 when the Board of Directors drafted plans for a million-dollar expansion of the building. Groundbreaking ceremonies for the addition were held in September, 1960. The formal opening and dedication of the annex came March 19, 1962. The Union now has a total of 85,000 square feet, including a mammoth new ballroom downstairs, a modern cafeteria and new office space, game and meeting rooms.

The Union has never operated on state funds. It works on a non-profit basis in conjunction with the Bookstore, and a set Student Union fee paid by the individual students.

"The New Substitution Rule"

by TED SMITS
Associated Press General Sports Editor

One of the beauties of college football has been that, like the English language, the stock market, or the mind of a co-ed, it is subject to constant change.

Sometimes these changes evoke criticism and confusion, as did the radical revision of the substitution rule made last January, but in the end the game keeps on growing and expanding and becoming more exciting to players and spectators alike.

What you are seeing every Saturday afternoon of the 1963 season is the effort of the coaches to come to terms with the new substitution rule and deploy their manpower for maximum effect.

Briefly, the new rule is this: either team can substitute freely on second or third down or on first down earned on a drive if, in all cases, the game clock is stopped. No more than two players can enter the game for a fourth down play or one on which the ball has just changed hands.

This stern restriction on substituting on fourth down or on a play on which the ball changes hands, of course, means that there is a real risk of being compelled to take the offense with a defensive team and vice versa. Even before the season started everyone, starting with Coach Paul Dietzel of Army who more or less originated the style, agreed this doomed the three platoon system consisting of a first or two-way team, and two others, one defensive, one offensive.

The restrictions of the new rule obviously mean players must be coached in both offensive and defensive skills. Undoubtedly substitutes will flow in and out of the game but under controlled conditions. For one thing, that phrase, "if the clock is stopped", is all important. Teams do not like to throw away a precious time out in order to make substitutions. That is why other means are being employed—an incomplete pass or a running play that goes out of bounds.

Probably the net result of all this is something that might be termed unlimited limited substitutions. Or maybe limited unlimited substitutions. Substitutions aplenty, yes. Restrictions aplenty, yes.

Ever since the "iron man" days of football when it was a matter of pride to finish a game with the same 11 men who started it, or as close thereto as could be achieved within the limits of human strength, a great debate has raged in college circles as to whether substitutions (a) favored the team that was deep and rich in manpower or (b) were desirable simply because they permitted more boys to take part in a game. The weight of evidence now seems to rest with (b). After all, college football is intended to provide recreation for young athletes as well as paunchy spectators, and the more of both classes engaged in the enterprise the better.

Of course there is no denying that what every coach wants is wave on wave of large, fleet, aggressive, tough, intelligent, young men each weighing 250 pounds or more and running the 100 yards in :09.5. That's the dream, anyway. The reality is what you are seeing, and is considerably below the ideal. That being the case it makes a lot of sense from the viewpoint of sportsmanship to have, back of the really few men who are big, tough and fast, some frail and skinny youngsters who only get into the game in specialized situations—to throw the right pass, make the important field goal, or break away for a brief but dazzling run. The new rules give them the opportunity.

It is to these and to all the others who range in size and strength between runts and the behemoths that the rules committee addressed itself. If everything proves out this could be one of the best changes that have ever been made in the rules book.

However, it is wise to keep in mind that what we have been discussing here are the techniques of football, not the fundamentals. The fundamentals still remain: vigorous bodily contact, a courageous heart, the ability to fit individual daring into a team framework, and the discipline that comes from playing to win but being able to accept defeat like a gentleman.

The superficial rules of this very basic game may change but not the game itself.

...a salute to a leader!

What does she mean "cigars...cigarettes...Tiparillos"?

You'll be hearing that chant more and more—now that Tiparillos have arrived. And arrived they have. In all the right places. With all the right people.

The new Tiparillo has a neat, trim shape. It looks young and debonair. And its pearly, pliable tip pays more than lip service to your smoking pleasure.

And never before such mildness! The most careful blending of choicest imported tobaccos has seen to that. So, too, has the exclusive, veinless Ultra Cigar Wrapper* that burns so evenly and smoothly it insures complete mildness.

You can even see the mildness. The surprisingly whiter ash is visible evidence. Smoker's proof. Here is flavor you don't have to inhale to enjoy.

"Cigars...cigarettes..." Who knows, maybe someday it will be just "Tiparillos!"

Why don't you ask for one today?

*T.M. GENERAL CIGAR CO.

Tiparillos are on sale at this stadium.

Washington State

The Washington State Cougars promise to bring back to the state of Texas the brand of exciting football that earned the Southwest its wild and woolley tag back in the 1930's.

Cougar Coach Jim Sutherland is noted nationwide for his wide-open, pro-style offenses, and the 1963 team at Washington State promises to be one of Sutherland's finest offensive clubs. Quarterback Dave Mathieson was ranked seventh among the nation's passers in 1962 with 104 completions for 1,492 yards and 12 touchdowns, and he's back for his senior season. The Cougars also have two of their best receivers from last Fall — end Gerry Shaw and halfback Ken Graham — returning.

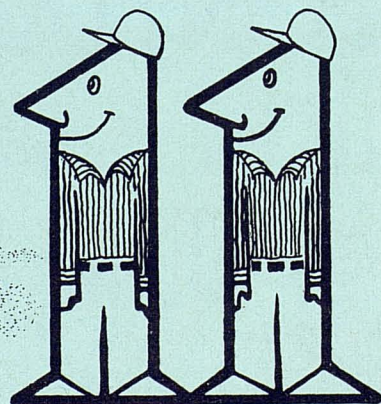

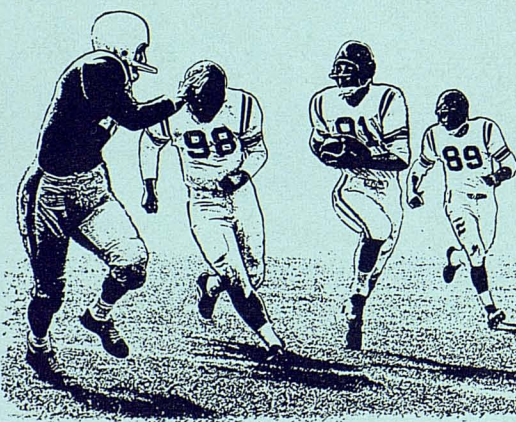

Washington State has been known as a team that throws the football just about 50 percent of the time, but Coach Sutherland hopes that his squad this year will be able to move the ball more consistently overland. Graham, one of the most versatile backs in the country, and John Browne, Clarence Williams, Herm McKee, T. C. McClellan, Larry Eilmes, and others, are the boys Sutherland is counting on to make his running game go.

The Cougars operate out of a pro T, but this year WSU will have its right end playing in tight next to the tackle. Coach Sutherland believes the new formation will give WSU more running strength, while the split left end, and the up-back (or right half) will maintain the big threat of the pass.

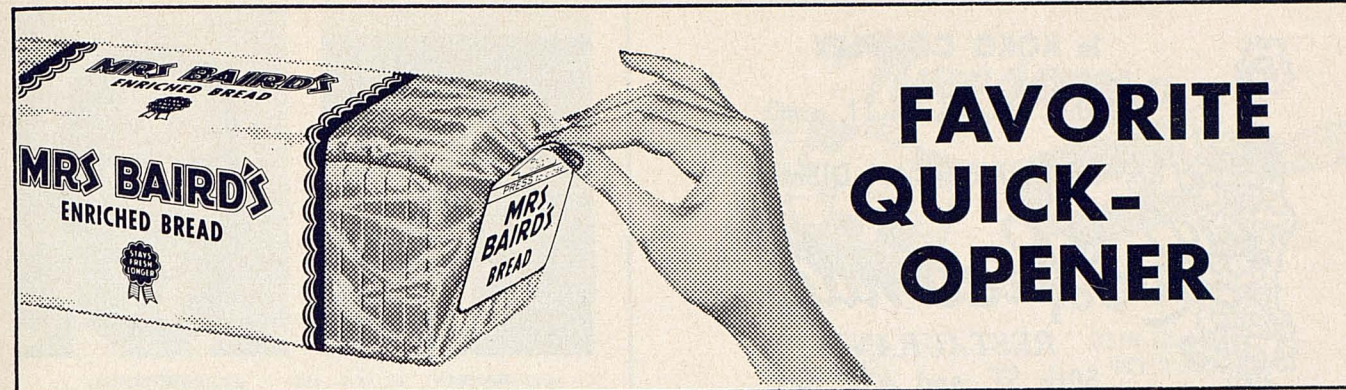

This is an entertaining football team, with speed in the backfield to go all the way on any play, and one of the best throwing arms in the nation to keep the defenses always honest. Jim Sutherland feels that the 1963 Washington State University team can be the best in his eight seasons at the Northwest school.

19th AND TEXAS

Three ways to quarterback the most important drive of the day —your drive home

1. Don't buck the line of traffic, stay in it. Fancy open field running doesn't pay on the highway.
2. When dusk falls and your visibility is limited, slow down and turn on your lights. What you can't see can hurt you.
3. Don't try to beat the clock by speeding. Remember, when time runs out on the highway, everybody loses.
