

New York, Nov. 15th '86

Dear Anna,

Yours of the 12th announcing the sad fact of your departure, has filled my heart with woe, but of course I divine the real cause of your leaving Brooklyn so suddenly - your desire to thwart my ambitious design of calling upon you,

But I will forgive you, if on your return you will set another evening, wherein

I may experience the delightful, though seldom occurring sensation of meeting you in your own house,

I have communicated your message to Steve, and I presume he will answer it in his own way.

Mrs. James has decided to hold her little "soirée" this evening, and you know not how it grieves me not to meet you there as my partner at whist. My thoughts, of course, will all be in Germantown, so you may consider yourself guilty of the cause of the horrible beating which I know I shall receive,

Hoping to see you ere long, I remain

Sincerely yours

Waverly Pond
