Descendants of Texas Pioneers Anticipate Convention in Dallas

By BOYRITA GUFFEY

An organization concerned for nearly 60 years with preserving the records of Texas history will draw statewide attention during the coming week.

That group is the Daughters of the Republic of Texas made up of some 1,500 members who will send 250 delegates to the DRT's annual convention opening at the Baker Hotel Thursday.

James Butler Bonham Chapter, headed by Mrs. Sue Ragland Diggle, is to be host at the event which will include business sessions, luncheons, a style show, a memorial service, tea and an historical program.

John Erhard will give the opening address at 8 p. m. Thursday in the Crystal Ballroom of the Baker Hotel and Mrs. Henry R. Wofford, San Antonio, will be honored at 10 p. m. the same evening in the ballroom at the state president's reception.

The first business session is scheduled for 9 a. m. Friday at the Peacock Terrace. A memorial service at 10:45 a. m. at the same place; a luncheon and style show, honoring charter members and past presidents, at noon in the Adolphus Hotel's Century Room will complete Friday morning's activities.

Concluding Friday's agenda, another business meeting is to be held at 2 p. m. at the Peacock Terrace; a tea is set for 5:30 p. m. to be given by Mrs. Currie McCutcheon, 5439 Swiss Ave., honoring new members of the state association and an historical event at the Peacock Terrace will be presented at 8 p. m.

The Peacock Terrace will be scene of a business session at 9 a. m. Saturday and at 12:15 p. m. a luncheon feting Real Daughters will be held at the Mural Room of the Baker Hotel. The final business meeting is scheduled for 2 p. m. Saturday at Peacock Terrace.

Preserving historical spots is one of the missions of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas and Mrs. George F. Carlisle, right, is chairman of the preservation of the sites. Checking the convention program with her is Mrs. Walter E. Elliott, program chairman of the local James Butler Bonham Chapter. The outstanding achievement of the organization is the maintenance of the Alamo and its environs. Their latest project is that of restoring the French Legation in Austin to be as nearly like it was during the days that Count de Saligny lived there. The DRT was also responsible for the new library wing at the Alamo, to be completed within a few months, which will be used to house the Yuanagana collection.

There has been little time for relaxation for these members of the James Butler Bonham Chapter of Dallas, making ready for the state convention of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas. Left to right are Mrs. Louis Steffens, treasurer of the local chapter; Mrs. W. C. Patterson, sunshine chairman; Mrs. Currie McCutcheon, entertainment chairman, and Mrs. Malcolm B. Boone, publicity chairman. Mrs. McCutcheon will give a tea, honoring new members of the state association, at 5:30 p. m. Friday in her home, 5439 Swiss Ave. An historical program is scheduled for 8 p. m. that evening at Peacock Terrace of the Baker Hotel.

Enthusiastic members of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas discuss plans for the coming week's state convention in Dallas. Left is Mrs. Arthur Stevens, decoration chairman; standing, Mrs. Eugene J. Hunter, chairman of the pages, custodian and personal page to Mrs. Henry R. Wofford, and Mrs. W. O. Forester, membership chairman.

California Report

Designer's Saga Runs To Glamorous Gams

By Naomi Black

Written Exclusively for The Times Herald

Los Angeles, May 6.—The Gamut of Glamorous Gams, is the title we've given the saga of Willy deMond, famous Hollywood designer of hosiery, whose life story has all the color, suspense, excitement, and rags-to-riches appeal that has made more than one Hollywood film "boxoffice."

Actually, the story of Willy deMond is a serial with the highlight of the current chapter vindicating his faith in an idea. We call this chapter "framed heels," not the type that tangle with the FBI but hosiery constructed with the famous "framed" or "Picturessque" heel, developed by the Sanson Mills who signed Willy of Hollywood (as he's better known) to create all their styles in this distinctive "novelty" category. The signing of this contract today proved Willy's 27-year-old belief in glamorous hosiery to be the "right of every woman."

As he says, hosiery styles go in cycles of 25 years.

"During Lillian Russell's time, women paid as high as $125 a pair for elaborate lace hosiery. During the flaming '20's glamor hosiery had another in. The time is here again for hosiery to glamorize every woman's costume," he declared.

The styles he will create under the "Picturessque" label, according to Willy, will be discreet expressions of the types he will continue to create under his own "Willy of Hollywood" label for his custom and film trade.

Began With Idea.

Actually, the forerunner of this "framed heel" idea first saw the light of hosiery for Ann Pennington back in "The Scandals" in '27. But that was only one of innumerable hosiery styles that sprang from the agile brain of Willy who started his career "with an idea." As a 16-year-old East Side school boy in New York he attended a textile trade school at night, worked in a dry goods jobbing house in the day time, and decided to design hosiery as his career because "stockings were one of the fastest selling items."

But no hosiery mill would buy his designs back in the "black-and-brown" stocking days.

Finally, in 1923, he had saved enough to pay the Lehigh Silk Hosiery Mills to make up a few of his designs (sheer silk stockings in colors and in mesh) and he sold them up and down Broadway to stars and chorus girls along with the "last edition." This newsboy with stocks to sell had his first big customer in the person of Marilyn Miller. In no time at all Willy was designing the stockings for Ziegfeld shows, the Shuberts, Belasco and still paying mills to make his styles.

The crash took care of the money he'd saved to go into business for himself and, like the Broadway stars, he moved to a fairer field, Hollywood. Here again, disappointments dogged his tracks—no "in" at the studio despite the fact he had made history with his opera-length colored stockings, meshes and novelties.

Works as Extra.

Then one day, just like a movie script, he ran into an old New York friend, Benny Thau, MGM casting director. Willy became an extra—and it so happened he had sample stockings in every pocket. Once again he was "in." "First redying ill-assorted lots of stockings to save the studio wardrobe money, next creating styles for the then 'young and promising' designer at MGM," and by 1940 Willy had his own mill creating his theatrical and custom-made hosiery for the glamor trade.

We went through the files with him in his Hollywood plant and to list the innovations he has been responsible for would sound like an inventory of a popular hosiery department. Only the date lines differ. He first brought out ombre hosiery in '35; sandal foot hosiery in '36; stockings with zipper mad-money pockets, bobby sox and lipstick colors in hosiery in '38; front-seam hosiery and "airflow feet" in hosiery in '39. Clocks and meshes (even the fully elasticized ones) he'd been creating since '25.

Then came the war and '41 found Willy with a government contract for nylon hosiery for the intelligence department and a permit to create nylon stockings for movies only. So it has gone until today when we saw his

Embroidered, Jeweled.

The current styles destined to carry over into the fall collections include his velvet polka dots, dainty embroidered clocks in fleur-de-lis and mosaic patterns, dotted heels, deep contrasting back seams to repeat the costume's colors, dainty jeweled motifs developed in pearls, tiny buttons and steel beads, iridescent beads on heels as well as combinations of tiny seed pearls and rhinestones. These are conservative expressions of the bejeweled hosiery that first saw light of day in period pictures and, like clocks,

Church Ceremony Unites G. K. Smith, Miss Moss

Wearing a gown of Chantilly-type lace over slipper satin, Miss Muriel Ellen Moss became the bride of Gordon Keith Smith Saturday in a ceremony read at the Central Congregational Church. The Rev. Arthur G. Swartz officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic J. Moss, 3808 Amherst St., and the Gordon C. Smiths, 1135 Pioneer Dr., are parents of the bridegroom.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride's gown was fashioned with an elongated bodice fastened with small lace-covered buttons. The Peter Pan collar and cap sleeves were edged with seed pearl leaves as were the petal points of the long lace gauntlets.

The full skirt, shirred to the bodice, fell over hoops and extended into a wide formal-length train.

Her short two-tiered veil of imported bridal illusion was caught to a coronet of seed pearls. She carried a spray of white orchids and stephanotis.

Music was presented by Miss Edith Wilkes, organist, and Mrs. C. B. Yeargan, soloist.

Mrs. Ball Honor Attendant.
Mrs. Ben C. Ball, Jr., acted as her sister's matron of honor wearing a gown of petal pink wendeline de sole over taffeta. A white floral design covered the molded bodice and encircled the center of the skirt. A stand-up collar framed the portrait neckline and a wide pink taffeta sash formed a bustle bow at the back.

A halo of waxy green leaves and pink maline completed her costume and she carried a bouquet of rainbow asters with pink maline and pink satin bows.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. R. R. Gantt and Misses Gene Smith and Shirley Davis, wore green mouseline fashioned after the matron of honor's dress and carried similar bouquets.

Mr. Smith's best man was his father while Oree Weller, Kenneth Thoma and Linwood Barton were groomsmen.

Bride on SMU Faculty.

A graduate of high school in San Antonio, the bride attended the University of Colorado and received her BS and MS degrees at Southern Methodist University where she is now a member of the faculty. She is also a member of Alpha Lambda Delta, Alpha Theta Phi and Xi Gamma Sigma. Her husband was graduated from Sunset High School and is a former student of Arlington State College and the University of Texas.

For the reception held in the church dining room, Mmes. Marshall Keathley, John Warwick, William Smith and Miss Frances Richey served the guests. Miss Ernestine Naylor presided at the bride's book.

At the end of the school term, the couple will travel to Lake Taneycomo at Rockaway Beach, Mo., and to the Ozarks. For her going away suit, Mrs. Smith chose a cocoa-colored suit with British tan bag and shoes. Her blouse, hat and gloves were white. They will live in Austin.

R. Q. Mills PTA convenes at 2:30 p. m. Thursday in the school auditorium. Officers will be installed by Mrs. Jasper Barron.

Panama Straw Is Used In Summer Accessories

By Alice Hughes

Written Exclusively for The Times Herald

New York, May 6.—Summer cottons, brisk and breezy, pose their own special accessory problem. What to wear with them for shoes, bag, hat? White is nice for a city like Dallas, but our smog-sprinkled atmosphere here makes white a problem in wilting, dusty summer days in New York. Up comes Larry Horan, talented New York shoe designer, with a wonderful substitute. Imaginative research has steered him toward the perfect summer shoe, made of Panama straw.

Alice Hughes

This is not the first time straw has made an appearance in summer shoes. But to my knowledge, it is the premiere of Panama, the same plaited, palmlike straw used by skilled natives in Ecuador, who weave it into the highest-grade Panama hats. For hats straw is woven over a conventional round block. For shoes, it had to be plaited into square sheets of uniform quality and texture.

Best From Ecuador

According to Shoe Designer Larry Horan, he collected fibers from wide regions of the globe—the East Indies, Europe, the Philippines, South America—to find the one of which could be created fine shoes in this malleable new material without sacrificing one whit of shoe style. The straw fiber which qualified best was the No. 1 grade, Ecuadorian Panama. Panama straw shoes come only in their natural color, a creamy off-white. One joyous fact about them is that soap and water is all that is needed to keep them clean. In a few minutes they dry in the sun. You know how light a Panama hat is on your head. So light, too, are Panama shoes. Supple, airy, and they go with every conceivable summer costume. Also a number of accessories—bags, belts, flowers, bows, compacts and cigarette cases—complete the Panama picture.

As for style, you name your type. You like to spend summer in crisp boys' shorts and a little sleeveless blouse? For you, the flats. Perhaps a soft-as-butter play shoe with closed toe and heel and ankle strap. Completely plain. Then there's a shoe that will put wings on your feet—a semimoccasin with metal eyelets, slashed sides and a front vamp tie. More formal but equally flat are two little pumps, one with open laced throat and one with touches of velvet.

Wedges of Cork

For pounding pavements on sizzling summer days, you can pamper your feet in the Panama shoes with a cork wedge. Cork is insulation, you know—keeps blistering heat from tender tootsies. Some of them are ankle straps a la Carmen Miranda. But do have a look at the slender shell pump whose adjustable kid vamp strap can be hidden under a little detachable bow when you want a dressier shoe.

More tailored, even formal evening occasions start out on the right foot if it's shod in Panama. Simple, elegant are the absolutely plain ankle-strap sandal and plunging throat pump. But when straps of gold chain or black velvet are added to high-heeled shoes of the cocktail type, there is excitement! Under fluttery organza dresses, these light-hearted, light-footed shoes are a match for the fluid cool feeling of the fabric. They are a match for the fluid cool feeling of the fabric. They are a match for the fluid cool feeling of the fabric.

ECUADORIAN PANAMA STRAW is photographed here in the large and varied assortment of Panama straw accessories for summer. The model, left, wears plunging pumps with velvet lacing, a calot, a separate velvet-piped bow, and carries a treasure chest handbag. The model, seated, wears shell sandals with gold chain instep strapping. Also shown in the photograph are other shoe styles including the shell pump, low-heeled pump with lattice vamp, and "Slouchy," with soft slashed sides; hat styles such as the cloche; handbags such as the lunch box, and envelope, box, and shoulder strap bags.

Chapter 9

Widows Wise and Otherwise

By GLADYS DENNY SHULTZ

(Editor's Note: This is one of 24 installments presenting in installment form Gladys Denny Shultz' book, "Widows Wise and Otherwise," published by J. B. Lippincott Co. Mrs. Shultz draws on her own experience as widow, homemaker and mother for the widows she incorporates for the wife who loses her husband.)

Perhaps you are not trained for any kind of remunerative work, and a year or two in college or in a business school will put you in a position where you can make a much better income than in the jobs usually open to the woman with no background beyond that of homemaker. In that case, you are justified in taking the money needed to fit you for wider opportunities.

Mrs. N., left with four youngsters and a small insurance policy, dipped into it to get a master's degree and to support the family while she was doing it. This she did heavily into her capital but enabled her to obtain a teaching position in a large school system, where salaries were considerably higher than in the places which would have been taken her with a BA degree alone. Within two years she had made back in extra salary the money she had spent, and was in line for further salary raises. A far better return on her money than any other kind of investment she could have made.

Mrs. D., who had never been to college, took a business course which fitted her for secretarial work.

Schubert Club To Mark Music Week on Tuesday

A duo-piano artist program will be presented by the Schubert Study Club at 10:30 a. m. Tuesday at the home of Mrs. W. C. Hilburn, 4304 Potomac Ave. In observance of National Music Week, the program will be given by Meses Hilburn, O. G. Satterlee, Walter J. E. Schiebel, James F. Sartain, Rupert Parker and W. F. Shelton.

Mrs. Frank McClelland, president, will preside during the business session. Meses Hal F. J. W. Fannan PTA executive Earl D. Behrends and C. A. Giltner are to assist during the social hour.

work. She was an excellent secretary and in the course of time worked up to an executive position in a large business, as good secretaries sometimes do. The money she had invested in her training came back to her many times over.

Insurance Suggested

There is still another legitimate use of insurance money, not always presented to the widow, but which I myself consider extremely important if you have children who are not yet ready to make their own way in the world. Even though you are trained and experienced, and either have a job or know you can get one, you undoubtedly feel deep concern as to what would become of your children if anything should happen to you.

I suggest that, if you are insurable, you at once do as I did—take out an insurance policy on your own life. And I suggest further that you dip into your insurance money to prepay the policy for five years or more, depending upon how young your children are.

When you are struggling to keep a roof over your head, the annual premiums on a policy of any size are in themselves a big worry and anxiety. Getting them taken care of when you have the money in hand not only furnishes the kind of protection which will give you the greatest peace of mind, but also avoids for a considerable time the necessity to pay premiums.

Handbook Available

To learn more fully how life insurance is set up, what it can do for you in your particular case and how you may pick a reliable company, I suggest that you send for "Handbook of Life Insurance," which is distributed by the Institute of Life Insurance, 60 E. 42nd St., New York City. The subject of annuities, also very important to the woman who must depend upon herself, is covered as well.

Money invested thus can't be inveigled from you even if you should lose the rest, at least your husband's sacrifices will have accomplished this much. Perhaps you think I harp on this. But it has happened to so many widows that it can hardly be overstressed.

One woman, an intelligent one at that, had been mulcted of all of her husband's insurance by a man she had every reason to trust. When, some years later, a legacy came her way, she paid off the mortgage on her home, paid up her insurance in full, bought a new car which she needed badly, and the first fur coat she ever had. "At least, nobody will get this much of it away from me," she reasoned, "even if I don't manage to hang on to the rest!"

While I would not urge extravagance, I should like to point out that putting money into something that will be of real help and lasting benefit is on occasion the best way to save it.

So let us say that you withdraw enough of the insurance money to pay your debts, or the mortgage on your home, to prepare yourself for a good job or to prepay insurance on your own life for the next five or 10 years.

Good Investments

Now, what to do with the sum that is left. It should be safe. It should also be disposed of so that you can get at it if you need it, yet not so easily accessible that you will be tempted to draw upon it unnecessarily. Here are several possibilities that fulfill these qualifications, as worked out with men highly skilled in investments:

1. Leave it with the insurance company. You will receive a small but dependable income from it. If you need to draw upon it at any time, you can do so.

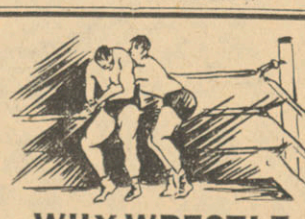

2. Buy United States government bonds. Your banker or lawyer can advise you about the various types of government bonds and you can decide which seems best for your use.

3. Apply the money toward an annuity. If you are a young or middle-aged woman, with no one else to think about, this is an excellent way of providing for your old age. If you are elderly, and can get along on the payments, you can take out an annuity on which the payments start immediately.

4. Place it in a savings account, provided you are confident of your ability to keep from drawing on it unnecessarily. (Bankers say widows generally have a good record for leaving funds intact, unless they genuinely need them).

5. Place it with the trust department of a reliable bank. Perhaps you have the idea many people entertain that trusts are for the large investor only. That is no longer the case. "A thousand dollars is an estate" is the new slogan of the banking world.

Don't go blindly into any type of investment, even into the ones generally considered safe. Choose your insurance company or bank with the same care it was suggested you use in choosing a lawyer. Don't be swayed by pressure; satisfy yourself in all respects by checking with disinterested persons. Then, barring some unforeseen contingency which the best and wisest planning cannot avert, there is every reason to feel that your money will be as safe as you can make it. (To Be Continued.)

Dorothy Dix Says

Men

(Copyright by The Bell Syndicate)

Of course, no woman any more understands a man than a man ever understands a woman. That is why they are of perpetual interest to each other.

Now while this lack of comprehension between the sexes is interesting and provocative, for we all like to try to guess riddles, it causes men and women to make many mistakes and get many queer ideas about each other that have no foundation in fact. Especially does it cause women to cherish some quaint notions about men.

For instance: For ages and ages women have believed that all men were strong, brave, silent creatures who endured every hardship without ever making a sign of the pain they were suffering. They thought that it was only weak women who grew hysterical and who made great outcries over unpleasant trifles.

Hence it is the shock of every bride's life when she discovers that her hero not only has feet of clay but is mostly made of mud, and that he goes into tantrums like a child when dinner is 10 minutes late, or there is boiled mutton when he was looking for roast beef, and that the language that he uses when his collar button rolls under the bureau is fit for no lady's ears.

And as for the stoical endurance of pain to which she expected to be an admiring witness, she finds out that every time hubby has a headache or tummy-ache he puts in a call for the doctor, and thinks he is going to die and wants her to sit by the bed and hold his hand, and that he makes more fuss over a pinprick than a woman does over a major operation.

Then every woman is born with the subtle conviction that every man is a money-maker just because he is of the masculine persuasion. That is the reason girls marry in the reckless way they do, without ever taking the trouble to find out whether their prospective husbands have a dollar in the bank, or a job, or any way whatever to support a family. And not even having to earn the bread and butter herself and finding out that he is a visionary dreamer with the money sense of a white rabbit shakes her faith.

Another queer idea that women have is that men don't feel about their family and friends as they do. A woman would be perfectly shocked if, when she got married, her husband forced her to give up her mother and father and sisters and brothers, and to part from all of her girl friends and only meet them on the sly now and then downtown. Why, she couldn't be that disloyal. She couldn't do anything that would hurt her own people who have been so tender and kind to her all her life.

But she doesn't think her husband loves his family as she loves hers. She doesn't think that he is grateful to his mother for all of her devotion and sacrifices, and that he is bound to his brothers by a thousand ties of affection. She doesn't think he would mind giving up the men friends who interest him, who stimulate him and who have stood by him in trouble a hundred times.

It is because brides actually believe that their husbands don't care about anybody but themselves that makes so many young wives use every effort to separate their husbands from their mothers and shoulder their old friends out of the house. Practically every home you know is filled up with the wife's friends and the wife's relatives. Husband isn't supposed to want any of his own.

Another queer idea of women is that men enjoy being reformed. No woman likes to be told of her faults, but she cherishes a deathless illusion that a man is simply having the time of his life when his wife is trying to change all of his personal habits and generally cut him over according to her little perforated pattern of what a husband should be.

But queerest of all the ideas that women have about men is that they have no need of tenderness and sympathy and understanding. They labor under the conviction that a man is content to take his wife's love for granted, even when she lavishes all of her affection on the children and gives him none. That he considers it a privilege to be permitted to tell to support a family without anybody even saying "thank you" to him. That he is never lonely, never troubled, never would like to have any of the money he earns for himself, never would like just to go off with a man friend. And it never even occurs to these women that being a man hasn't made him immune to being a human being.

Funny, the ideas women have about men, isn't it?

Gal Who's a Pal Lands Genial Gent

New York, May 6.—The big June moon is awful purty, but I'll wager that more young couples get that message right out in the bright sunshine after a 20-yard splash or a few sets of tennis. If you'd like to land yourself a genial gent, plan a sports campaign so that you'll fit right in as a summer replacement for his buddies. Yep, a fella needs a girl, but how wonderful to find a gal who's a pal by day and a dream in organdy at night? Grandstand Gertie may look like a Cover Girl, but if she can't swing a ball bat, she'll never get to first base!

Betty Betz

"Is it possible to be in love with two boys at the same time?" asks 16-year-old Harriet. This girl likes both gents equally well, but they're quite opposite types. One is a class president, a top athlete, good-looking and in general a big man around school. But then he's kinda shy, doesn't like parties, and complains if Harriet sets her eyes on another fella. The other heart-beat is the school joy-boy. He keeps everyone in stitches and lights up like a pinball machine at parties. On the other hand, he's too short, wears sloppy clothes and has a wandering eye for other girls.

So what's the score now? Harriet will never find a man who's perfect, but some day she'll find someone who comes pretty close to it in HER mind after she decides what she really wants. There are certain good points to both of these fellas, and if Harriet could blend them, she'd have a Superman. But as this is impossible, it's best she take neither of them seriously and wait until the real thing comes along.

As time goes by she'll learn that when she's really in love there will be no question about whom she likes best, and she'll realize that leading on two serious beaux is about as ridiculous as having two boyfriends on her head. . . and about as troublesome, too!

See you Tuesday.

MRS. GENE SKELTON

Church in Allen Scene of Nuptials

Miss Joyce Williams of Allen, formerly of Dallas, was married Friday in the Allen First Baptist Church, to Gene Skelton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Skelton of Prosper.

Music was presented by Miss Kay Whisenant and Mrs. James Cooper. The Rev. James Cooper performed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, H. O. Williams, the bride was wearing a floor-length gown of slipper satin fashioned with a deep scalloped neckline and a molded basque. Her fingertip-length veil of illusion fell from a halo of pearlized orange blossoms and she carried a white Bible topped with a white orchid. Mrs. H. O. Williams of Allen is the bride's mother.

Mrs. Tommie Moore, cousin of the bride, acted as matron of honor; Mrs. Glenn Betts and Ruth Leach were bridesmaids. The bridegroom's best man was Ernest Maynard, Jr., of Prosper. Groomsmen were Charles Pettegrew, Celina, and Earl Skelton of Dallas and Doyle Morrow of Denton and the Rev. Ray Millican of Fort Worth.

Preceding a short trip, the newlyweds were honored at a reception held in the church parlor. Misses Louise Reid, Betty Butler, Mary Nell Smith, Vertie Lee Cowan and Mrs. Charles Melton and Mrs. John Lowry of McKinney, assisted in serving.

For traveling Mrs. Skelton chose a white Irish linen suit with linen brocade trim, and matching accessories. The couple will live in McKinney.

might extend another salute to DRT which is responsible for the preservation of the historic site in San Antonio.

The mission of the organization is: "To perpetuate the memory and spirit of the men and women who achieved and maintained the independence of Texas; to encourage historical research; to foster preservation of documents and relics; to secure and hallow all historic spots by erecting markers thereon; and to cherish and preserve the unity of Texas as achieved and established by fathers and mothers of the Texas Revolution."

The latest project of the DRT is to remake the French Legation in Austin into a replica of houses in Williamsburg, Va., during the Republic. The state made the group custodian of the Legation last summer.

It is hoped that all original furnishings now in existence will be returned to the Legation. The outdoor kitchen is to be rebuilt and the garden will be restored with flora that could have come from France more than 100 years ago. Native Texas shrubs and flowers are to be planted.

When the library wing of the Alamo Hall is completed within a few months, it will be used to house the valuable collection of Texana bequeathed to DRT by Dr. William E. Howard along with the Yuanguana collection. Mrs. J. K. Beretta of San Antonio submitted sufficient funds, in honor of the member of her husband, to complete the wing.

The first recipient of the Clara Driscoll scholarship for research in Texas history at the University of Texas went to John Nathan Cravens, who wrote the dissertation on "James Harper Starr, Treasurer of the Republic of Texas Under President Lamar." The copyright to this book and all profits made from sales are to go to the DRT's publication fund. Mrs. Mary Starr Neindorff, member of the James Butler Bonham Chapter, and her sister, Mrs. Ruth Starr Blake, granddaughters of Dr. Starr, provided funds for the book's publication.

Mmes. Tom C. Gooch, John A. Wellborn, Yancey L. Jones and Edwin C. Schieffer are vice-presidents of the Dallas Chapter; Mrs. Emmett M. Hunter, chaplain; Mrs. Cullen L. Tubb, corresponding secretary; Mrs. C. Louis Stefens, treasurer; Mrs. Charles D. Adams; Mrs. Eugene J. Hunter, custodian; Miss Dora Fleck, auditor; Miss Ida Lively, parliamentarian, and Mrs. J. W. Skinner, poet laureate.

Members of DRT pursue various interests; while they are concerned with preserving Texas' historical records, they also strive to perpetuate those ideals, which made Texas a free nation, as an influence on civic life today.

Expressive of the DRT's ideals are the words of the motto: "Texas, One and Indivisible."

Sigma Alpha Iota Alumnae have planned a musicale, business meeting and installation at 8 p. m. Monday. Hostess will be Mrs. Claude Burton, 4005 Euclid Ave.
