

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH,
YONKERS, N. Y.

Nov. 24th, 1903.

My dear Dr. Hyde:

I am sending you at the request of Mr. Tibbels, who said you would like to have me do so, a short tribute to the memory of Mrs. Tweed for publication in the Brooklyn Eagle.

It is a sad duty to perform, for I dearly loved Mrs. Tweed, and my sorrow is very deep at her departure from us. She was indeed a choice spirit, a chosen vessel - and I never again expect to know a woman possessing her rare combination of fine

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH,
YONKERS, N. Y.

Yonkers, Sept. 1, 1903.

My dear Mr. Apple:

I am sending you at the request of Mr. Apple, who has you would like to have one do as, a short tribute to the memory of Mr. Apple for publication in the Yonkers Eagle.
It is a sad duty to perform, but I deeply loved Mr. Apple, and my name is now kept at his request from us. The more valued a close friend, a close friend - and I never again felt to know a common friend his rare contribution of four and beautiful characteristics.

It is a matter of the greatest regret to me that I cannot be at the funeral. At the hour of the service I have given a public invitation, which it is now impossible for me to reach, to one of the members of my church, which is engaged in an important work of service, to visit me and my wife with a view to organizing our work. If I should fail to be present it would be a serious matter, and the work would seriously suffer.
Trusting that what I send to you for publication, ~~and~~ may be suitable; and with kindest regards, believe me,
Sincerely yours,
William F. Apple.

and beautiful characteristics.

It is a matter of the greatest regret to me that I cannot be at the funeral. At the hour of the service I have given a public invitation, which it is now impossible for me to recall, to one of the societies of my church which is engaged in an important work of charity, to meet me and my wife with a view to organizing our work. If I should fail to be present it would be a serious matter, and the work would seriously suffer.

Trusting that what I send to you for publication, ~~and~~ may be suitable; and with kindest regard, believe me

Sincerely Yours,

Andrew A. Underhile.

Mrs. Tweed,

c/o Mrs. Sarah B. Stwater,

White Plains,

N. Y.

To be saved

