TO: Delegates to the Constitutional Convention of Texas of 1974, et al

The numerous WHEREAS paragraphs of the accompanying Resolution are self-explanatory, but the items being amended may need some explanation. The changes recommended here have been reviewed by Dr. William R. Keast, Chairman of the Department of English, The University of Texas at Austin. Thanks to the diligent work of Dr. Keast, some of the original changes have been deleted and some have been altered. Three changes recommended by Dr. Keast are included in the Resolution. Following is an item-by-item explanation of each suggested change:

(1) Rule I, Section 2, reads in pertinent part: "When a quorum is present, the affirmative vote of a majority of the Delegates present and voting is sufficient for the adoption of any motion or resolution or the taking of any action, except in those cases where a different majority is specifically required by these Rules." Since this wording is exceptionally clear in its meaning, there is no need to repeat throughout the Rules the provision that an action must be taken by "a simple majority of the Delegates to" as is done in Rule II, Section 1, and in many other instances throughout the Rules. Elimination of this excess working in the various places where indicated in these amendments will clearly indicate that the wording of Rule I, Section 2, applies, inasmuch as no other fraction is indicated.

(2) Removing the phrasing "to-wit" cleans up this language by eliminating an unnecessary piece of verbiage.

(3) Material included in that portion of a sentence set apart by a semicolon should be in essence a complete sentence. Since the phrases between the semicolons of this Section 3 are not, in essence, complete sentences, they should be separated by commas and not by semicolons.

(4) Ibid.

(5) Ibid.

(6) This is another grammatical change that conforms to more accepted and acceptable usage.

(7) The sentence preceding the one being corrected refers to a person or persons other than the Chairman of a committee. Since the sentence being corrected does refer to the Chairman, it seems proper to make the corrections indicated for the purpose of clarity. (Dr. Keast advises this change is "especially important.")

(8) See Item (1) above.

(9) This amendment deletes two words which are not necessary to the proper construction and understanding of the material.

(10) This is a dual change which rephrases the sentence in order to make it easier to read and interpret, and also deletes material referred to in Item (1) above.

(11) This amendment deletes two unnecessary words and makes it identical in form to the usage in the following Section 2.

(12) See Item (1) above.

(13) The construction of this sentence, by using "shall", would make it appear that a second and final extension of time will be granted automatically. Changing "shall" to "may" definitely indicates that such an extension will be granted only if requested. (Dr. Keast advises this change is "especially important.")

(14) See Item (1) above.

(15) Ibid.

(16) Ibid.

(17) The President is a Delegate of the Convention and should not be included among those listed who are not members of the Convention—in other words, mentioning "the President" is a redundancy.

(18) Dr. Keast says: "'When' would be more precise than 'where,' which is rather too colloquial for a formal document."

(19) Since this portion of Section 5 could refer to a situation where a quorum is not present, it seems advisable to indicate that a majority vote "of those present" is necessary.

(20) See Items (1) above.

(21) Deletion recommended by Dr. Keast.

(22) See Item (1) above.

(23) Ibid.

(24) The comma belonging after "clause" (separating parenthetical material from the remainder of the sentence) seems to have been inadvertently dropped in typing.

(25) This is a grammatical correction of punctuation only.

February 15, 1974

- (26) See Item (1) above.
- (27) Ibid.
- (28) The indicated capitalizations conform to the form and style used throughout the Rules.
- (29) Ibid.
- (30) See Item (1) above.
- (31) Rewording suggested by Dr. Keast.
- (32) This is to insert a word apparently dropped in typing.
- (33) The indicated capitalization conforms to the form and style used throughout the Rules.
- (34) Ibid.

At first glance it may seem to some that the amendments offered in the accompanying Resolution are nit-picking and unnecessary. Nevertheless, I do believe that the time and the effort which would be expended in making these changes will reflect to the credit of the Constitutional Convention of Texas of 1974 and should be made before further distribution of the Rules takes place.

Thanks to the diligent work of Dr. Keast, some of the original changes have been deleted and some have been altered. Three changes recommended by Dr. Keast are included in the Resolution. Following is an item-by-item explanation of each suggested change:

(1) Rule I, Section 2, reads in pertinent part: "When a quorum is present, the affirmative vote of a majority of the Delegates present and voting is sufficient for the adoption of any motion or resolution or the taking of any action, except in those cases where a different majority is specifically required by these Rules." Since this wording is exceptionally clear in its meaning, there is no need to repeat throughout the Rules the provision that an action must be taken by "a simple majority of the Delegates to" as is done in Rule II, Section 1, and in many other instances throughout the Rules. Elimination of this excess working in the various places where indicated in these amendments will clearly indicate that the wording of Rule I, Section 2, applies, inasmuch as no other fraction is indicated.

(2) Removing the phrasing "to-wit" cleans up this language by eliminating an unnecessary piece of verbiage.

(3) Material included in that portion of a sentence set apart by a semicolon should be in essence a complete sentence. Since the phrases between the semicolons of this Section 3 are not, in essence, complete sentences, they should be separated by commas and not by semicolons.

(4) Ibid.

(5) Ibid.

(6) This is another grammatical change that conforms to more accepted and acceptable usage.

(7) The sentence preceding the one being corrected refers to a person or persons other than the Chairman of a committee. Since the sentence being corrected does refer to the Chairman, it seems proper to make the corrections indicated for the purpose of clarity. (Dr. Keast advises this change is "especially important.")

(8) See Item (1) above.

(9) This amendment deletes two words which are not necessary to the proper construction and understanding of the material.

(10) This is a dual change which rephrases the sentence in order to make it easier to read and interpret, and also deletes material referred to in Item (1) above.

(11) This amendment deletes two unnecessary words and makes it identical in form to the usage in the following Section 2.

(12) See Item (1) above.

(13) The construction of this sentence, by using "shall", would make it appear that a second and final extension of time will be granted automatically. Changing "shall" to "may" definitely indicates that such an extension will be granted only if requested. (Dr. Keast advises this change is "especially important.")

(14) See Item (1) above.

(15) Ibid.

(16) Ibid.

(17) The President is a Delegate of the Convention and should not be included among those listed who are not members of the Convention—in other words, mentioning "the President" is a redundancy.

(18) Dr. Keast says: "'When' would be more precise than 'where,' which is rather too colloquial for a formal document."

(19) Since this portion of Section 5 could refer to a situation where a quorum is not present, it seems advisable to indicate that a majority vote "of those present" is necessary.

(20) See Items (1) above.

(21) Deletion recommended by Dr. Keast.

(22) See Item (1) above.

(23) Ibid.

(24) The comma belonging after "clause" (separating parenthetical material from the remainder of the sentence) seems to have been inadvertently dropped in typing.

(25) This is a grammatical correction of punctuation only.

- (26) See Item (1) above.
- (27) Ibid.
- (28) The indicated capitalizations conform to the form and style used throughout the Rules.
- (29) Ibid.
- (30) See Item (1) above.
- (31) Rewording suggested by Dr. Keast.
- (32) This is to insert a word apparently dropped in typing.
- (33) The indicated capitalization conforms to the form and style used throughout the Rules.
- (34) Ibid.

At first glance it may seem to some that the amendments offered in the accompanying Resolution are nit-picking and unnecessary. Nevertheless, I do believe that the time and the effort which would be expended in making these changes will reflect to the credit of the Constitutional Convention of Texas of 1974 and should be made before further distribution of the Rules takes place.
