Astonishing Line-Pulverizer

JOHN POLANSKI

He Means Business

Frank Kapriva, 200 pounds of right guard, has been dealing out misery in large packages to Southern Conference teams this season. Many critics are ranking him one of the nation's better guards. He is ready to toss all his deadly blocking and tackling at the Red Raiders today.

Here is misery No. 1 for the Texas Tech Red Raiders in their home-coming game today. He is Big Joltin' John Polanski, the really very astonishing line-pulverizer of the Wake Forest Deacons. This guy is all that Wake Forest needs for a terrific power-attack. Polanski is one of the superb backs of the rugged Southern Conference and has received his share of All-American mention in the various headlines.

Polanski, who weighs 210-pounds, plows off the left half-back position. He was Wake Forest's standout ground gainer last season and has been going even better this year. Joltin' John will make you shudder today when he grabs that ball and starts for pay-dirt because he is one of the best halfbacks to ever cut a Southern sod with football cleats.

Here's Lightning and Thunder

TONY GALLOVICH

An Unclipped Wing

Paul Waivers, 180-pound right end for the Wake Forest Deacons, is tops among Southern Conference ends. Waivers is one reason the Deacons have won six of their eight games this season. A hard tackler, fast down the field and always a heads-up player, Waivers is always included in the list of fellows who played outstanding ball for Wake Forest.

PAUL WAIVERS

Little Tony Gallovich, just 172-pounds of mercury, is what we call down South a "scat back"—meaning if you give him a start half the length of his shirt tail, you might as well trot down to goal and get ready to try to block the try for point. In Tony Gallovich you will see a bag of the finest running talent in the nation. He is one of the nation's leaders in yardage gained from rushing.

Tony operates off the right halfback slot and has been in the headlines all this season by virtue of his sensational touchdown runs. He is the thunderbolt of speed that may strike like lightning against the Red Raiders in today's big, colorful intersectional game.

Wake Forest "Brain Trust"

Here's three of the Wake Forest "brain trusts" who will operate against the Red Raiders today. J. V. Pruitt, 177-pound quarterback, is due to see a lot of action. John Pendergast, 181-pound center, is one of the best snapper-backs in the business. Coach D. C. "Peahead" Walker will be on the sideline watching his Deacons carry on.

Captain Courageous

JIM RINGOLD

This phantom of the gridiron is Captain Jim Ringgold of the Wake Forest Deacons. Ringgold, one of the best cleated hurricanes running today, is a powerful blocking back and dangerous ground gainer. He is always eager to plunge or scoot with the ball. He is a fiery leader. Like Tony Gallovich, this Ringgold is one of the nation's leaders in yardage gained. He is one vital reason the Deacons have enjoyed such football success the last two seasons. The Tech forward wall will have a difficult time trying to check this captain's territory bid today because he is ready for a great game.

COACH PETE W. CAWTHON

COACH RUSSELL "DUTCHY" SMITH

Their Eleventh Home-Coming.

Search this land where you wish but you'll never find a more perfect coaching team than Peter Willis Cawthon and Russell "Dutchy" Smith of the Texas Tech Red Raiders. Today celebrates their eleventh consecutive home-coming with the Red Raiders and their Texas Technological College. Through the years, through the bitter and through the sweet, their direct goal has been to build the Texas Tech athletic program from nothing into national recognition . . . and to this end they have crowned their work with success. They have worried and worked night and day to build young boys into successful men . . . men with character, ambition and education . . . their success has been tremendous. The class room progress of Texas Tech football players is just as important to Coaches Cawthon and Smith as any winning touchdown the Red Raiders ever scored. It is their firm belief that to be a top-notch football player a boy must first be a high ranking student in the class rooms. There is a lot of football coaches in these United States, some bad, some mediocre and some good . . . but on the Texas Tech bench today, as in the past eleven years, you will see two of the finest men in the coaching profession . . . two men who never look back because their record sparkles with high achievements for their boys and the college they represent . . . we give you Pete Cawthon and "Dutchy" Smith for this home-coming and many home-comings into the tomorrows.

McKnight, senior right end, leads —Tech's scoring march

By virtue of his five touchdowns and eight conversions, E. J. (Shadow) McKnight, senior right end from Mexia, continues to pace the Texas Tech scoring parade with 38-points. McKnight failed to get his touchdown last Monday against Centenary but he notched himself a single conversion. By scoring two touchdowns against Centenary, Big Walter Webster jumped into the thick of the scoring race with three touchdowns for 18-points. Sixteen Red Raiders have combined their scoring power for 28 touchdowns, fifteen conversions and one safety for a grand total of 185-points in seven games. The scoring parade of the Red Raiders follows:

Player	Position	Touchdowns	Conversions	Points
E. J. McKnight	Right End	5	8	38
Thayne Amonett	Left Half	3	1	19
Charlie Dvoracek	Fullback	3	0	18

To The Stadium By City Bus

Go to the games this year in the luxurious comfort of a modern City Bus. They offer first class transportation at a fraction of the cost of driving your own automobile. You can save enough through low fares to buy your stadium tickets. And it is fourteen times safer, too, than a private car in football traffic. Frequent, convenient schedules enable you to leave and return whenever you wish without the cares and worries of driving. There is always a congenial crowd aboard.

St. Louis Next —For Raiders

Today's Wake Forest game will close the Red Raiders 1940 home season, but they will still have three games on their schedule. They will invade St. Louis for a Thursday, Nov. 21st game with St. Louis University. Then they will go to Albuquerque for their annual game against the University of New Mexico. Plans are being made for a big special train to Albuquerque and fans who are interested in riding the special and seeing the game should communicate with Ralph Trolinger at the local passenger station. Following their Nov. 30 game in Albuquerque, the Red Raiders will close their season on December 7th by playing the San Francisco University Dons in 'Frisco. So in their final home game here today, give the Red Raiders a big round of applause, they've played some highly interesting football for West Texas fandom.

Arm Mends, He Returns To Gridiron Wars

Red Marberry, Wake Forest quarterback, sustained a broken arm in September and did not play against William Jewell, North Carolina, Furman, Clemson and Marshall, but he is ready for some fancy signal calling against the Red Raiders. Marberry weighs 165-pounds, is 5'-8". He played against Duke three weeks ago for his first game appearance of the season. His return to playing form adds a lot of strength to the fast traveling Deacons.

He Gains Territory When He Gallops

MARSHALL EDWARDS

Marshall Edwards is one of the better Wake Forest halfbacks. He has a commendable ball carrying average this season. Against William and Jewell he carried the ball three times for 28-yards. Against North Carolina he galloped six times for 31-yards. Against Furman he went seven times and netted 18-yards. In the Clemson game he only carried the ball four times and got 2-yards. In the next game against Marshall College he lugged the leather four times to pick up seven yards. Against the highly rated Duke Blue Devils he carried the mail five times and gained 13-yards. He came back with three tries and 6-yards against George Washington, and last week against North Carolina State he galloped three times for 13-yards.
