STATEMENT OF BOARD POLICIES

- 1. Political Policy: Each member and League Board has a responsibility to all members of the League everywhere. It is the duty of the Board to see to it that the League is in fact nonpartisan, that what it does and what it says are not influenced by any party or any candidate or said or done in support of a party or candidate. However, Board members may have party affiliations and should carry out the responsibilities of every voter in exercising the franchise, including the responsibility to become informed about candidates and are free to attend precinct meetings and caucuses. A board member may not be a delegate to a higher level party. A Board member must resign from the Board before she announces candidacy for any public office. If a member of her immediate family becomes a candidate for public elective office, the Board will decide whether said Board member shall continue in office. (For further details refer to 1969 Local League Handbook, pp. 5-6)
- 2. Service on Boards or Committees? When a Board member accepts appointment to a governmental committee, commission or board she must report this to the League Board.
- 3. Finances: Board members have the responsibility for the routine expenditures of funds in their portfolios. Unusual expenditures require prior Board authorization.
- 4. Use of Office Equipment: The equipment in the League office is to be used only for approved League purposes.

Ms. Julie Lowenberg, President League of Women Voters of Dallas 2727 Inwood Road, Suite 241 Dallas, Texas 75235

Dear Julie:

I am sorry to have to tell you that I am unable to accept the invitation of the League of Women Voters of Dallas to be your guest and featured speaker at a late winter meeting on Advocate for the Voter.

As national League president I receive many, many invitations to attend both League and non-League functions—more invitations than I could possible accept. We have accordingly adopted a policy of considering only invitations from state Leagues, and even then I find that I must decline some invitations.

Please thank the members of the Dallas League board for the invitation and explain to them why it is not possible for me to be with you. The members of the national board join me in sending you best wishes for the success of the Advocate for the Voter event.

Sincerely,

Nancy M. Neuman

I plant be in DAILES for the felecuperene on Nov. 18. I'd love to have a chance to catch up with you then!

NANCY M. NEUMAN President July 6, 1989

Julie Lowenberg, President LWV of Dallas 2727 Inwood Road Dallas, TX 75235

Dear Julie:

Thank you for sending me a copy of your letter to Jean Peterson regarding items of interest to the big city League's workshop at Council '89. I can assure you that the topics you mention were foremost on everyone's mind and were much discussed and analyzed. It was a productive meeting for me, in that now I have a much clearer idea of the impact on local and state Leagues of this process. I hope that the dialogue will continue until mutually acceptable and effective resolutions are found for the issues of developing an involved membership and for financing a multi-level organization.

I'd like to tell you how very helpful and thorough your League's Membership Growth Plan is. You have, of course, pinpointed the the most important factor in successful membership recruitment - personal contact. Your focus for next year also emphasizes the most often stated reason for joining and staying in the League, effective work on the issues. Thank you very much for sharing the plan. May I contact you for input on a new leader's networking publication that is currently in the planning stages?

As you know, the LWV is sponsoring a national teleconference in November to be broadcast from the JCPenney facilities in Dallas. We are working closely with state Leagues to identify local Leagues that will participate in the teleconference at sites across the country. I understand the Dallas facilities are very small and local audience participation may be limited to presenters but I hope the Dallas League can be a part of this exciting event in other ways. If you have ideas that would help your League use this event as an opportunity to gain new members, increase visibility or raise money please let us know and we will do all we can to help make it happen.

In following up on the problems you raised in your April 20 letter to us, Julie Parent, Database Systems Manager, assures me that members Debbie O'Connor and Terence O'Connor now are coded as locally renewed. A memo regarding NRMs will be sent to all League Presidents very soon.

In the interim, let me say that local Leagues are encouraged to contact and involve nationally recruited members and may renew these members if they wish. National sends the first renewal notice to NRMs sixty days before their expiration date and will continue to try to renew these members until we are notified that they have renewed locally or until we receive a dues payment from them.

I look forward to working with you and the Dallas League in continuing to build a strong and effective League for the '90s.

Sincerely,

Sandra Gillis, Director Member Services Division

5. What are your special interests and skills relevant to this internship? I am particularly interested in working with issues related to the environment and government. Also of concern are issues pertinent to fairness and a well functioning government. In 1985 I was selected for a one-week Audubon lobby workshop in Washington DC. Those skills plus practice have enabled me to participate in citizen government and to encourage others to do likewise. I find I am most able to motivate by example. I have developed a presentation on lobbying "how-to's." Presently I write and distribute an informal environmental memo of current environmental legislation needing citizen response.

6. Why do you believe you are a good candidate for this internship?
I want to increase my knowledge and first-hand experience in lobbying in Washington D.C. in order to share those skills with others and to practice them at the grass-roots level. I have reached a point where I need to refine existing skills. The internship would afford that plus the opportunity of making contacts which are invaluable as the building blocks for understanding not only how but who (or what positions - elected, staff or citizen), make certain actions happen.

7. What do you hope to gain or learn as a Rosalie Goodman intern? In addition to experience and contacts, I hope to work with people who will guide me in evaluating and refining the plans set forth below. I hope to gain new insights into the working of the League of Women Voters to enhance longterm local work both within and in extension of the League. In short, to be a more effective citizen.

8. If you are selected as a Rosalie Goodman intern, how will you share this experience with your League and community? (See instruction sheet criterion 4).
Workshops to relate the skills and experiences could be a first step in sharing th interm opportunity: mini-sessions, workshops, issue-related strategy sessions for example. Specific cases would often be expanding existing programs or ideas and/or extending them to other community organizations through networking. Using LWV pattern of hearings watchdogs for issues of concern, expanded through networking with newly formed CEED group. Development of local/multi-community household hazardous waste collection, perhaps in conjunction with Earth Day, 1990. Promote community, city, county recycling in a variety of ways. Receptions for newly elected persons, e.g., city council. Bus or carpool to capitol for specific event(s) including "Meet Your Legislator Day" (This is done already to some extent
My proposal is to expand and encourage attendance.)

Ms Julie Lowenburg, President League of Women Voters - Dallas

Dear Ms Lowenberg,

Six or seven years ago, I attended an Audubon Society conference in San Antonio. It was time to elect new officers for the regional Audubon Council of Texas (ACT); the group had been struggling to recruit enough people to make our "grassroots" lobbying of the Texas legislature effective. We were casting about for ideas and for leadership; too many of us had full time work commitments, too few of us could obligate to contacting the many chapters in the three states on national issues.

During one of the rest breaks, a new acquintance, Jim Anderson, indicated that his wife had been an officer in the Seattle organization; they had recently moved to the Dallas area and she just might like to have a job to get better acquainted with the conservation and political issues confronting the southwest. "Think she'd like to be president?" he was asked.

Wilma Anderson took the job and became the spark plug that united the efforts of the Texas chapters. We did not accomplish all that we wanted (you know the Texas Lege!), but we did get organized, and we became effective; we got to know each other and the next ACT presidents have been able to spend their time on issue resolution rather than "Who are we gonna git ta do it?"

Hardly taking a breath, Wilma jumped into the chairmanship of Texas Committee on Natural Resources (TCONR); they did many things that had never been attempted before. The lists of volunteers doing the old and new tasks multiplied in each issue of their Conservation Progress. Her enthusiasm, obviously, was infectious.

The summer of '87 was explosive in the National Audubon Society. Financial constraints spurred some unpopular decisions in the New York offices. The rebellion in the hinterlands caused a change in the election procedures of the National Audubon Board of Directors: we were to get some "grassroots" personnel on the Board. We had many qualified and enthusiastic candidates: the one who took the initial one year term was Wilma; she was effective enough that she was subsequently re-elected to two more years.

So, I'm most pleased to recommend Wilma Anderson for your October lobby internship in Washington DC. She's been there before; she pushed us when she returned from an Audubon lobbying experience in '86, and we're better for it, locally, regionally, and nationally. She puts into practice what she has learned; she somehow gets us energized to do more during those vital times when Congress seems to be swayed by PACs and lobbyists. Long may she labor; let her talents and skills increase!

Julie Lowenberg, President League of Women Voters - Dallas Dallas, Texas

Dear Ms. Lowenberg:

Wilma Anderson would like to participate in an internship later this year in Washington, D.C. She would be such an asset to you as a lobbyist, having done it so successfully.

With even a brief acquaintance Wilma demonstrates that she is vital, attractive, well groomed, with a nice voice. Her academic degrees awarded by her University with honors indicate her intellectual status. She has a successful and loving husband, proud of and supportive of her community service. Their two nice children are old enough to be away at college. I have known Wilma only since 1984, but her earlier reputation for leadership has been expressed to me by people in the Pacific Northwest who attend national Audubon meetings.

Within months after the arrival of the Anderson family in Dallas from Seattle Wilma was asked by a dispirited Audubon Council of Texas to become its President. The Council has about 20,000 member families and 17 chapters. How quickly was it transformed! Wilma had been the successful President of her Seattle Audubon chapter and knew what to do. She charmed, prodded, stimulated, set an example. The paid staff and the numerous volunteers were waiting for the skilled leader. In her two terms as President she provided goals, assigned tasks, raised funds, made us proud of the work of our organization. For one thing we raised funds to pay for a half-time lobbyist at the Texas legislature.

When the self-perpetuating Board of Directors of the National Audubon Society was about to shoot itself in the foot in 1987, an electric letter from Wilma was sent them. It was so right, so practical, so needed. Soon everyone had copies. The Board reversed itself. The ByLaws were changed to become more democratic. Wilma was elected to the National Board and in 1988 reelected.

The Texas Committee on Natural Resources really blossomed when Wilma Anderson became its executive staff leader. It gained membership, influence, and respect.

I have a special perspective as Wilma's Vice-President and her successor as President of the Audubon Council of Texas. She remains on the ACT Board, lengthening the time of our work together. There is no one, paid or not, who has a better strategic ability. She wears well.

Sincerely,

David C. Carson

Dear Julie:

This is a letter of recommendation for Wilma Anderson regarding her application to the League for the October Lobby Internship in Washington D. C.

I have known Wilma for several years and have worked closely with her over the past year. She had asked for my help as a volunteer for the Texas Committee of Natural Resources when she was their Executive Director. There I was able to observe her excellent capabilities in organization, knowledge of her work (conservation and ecology with all its facets of legislative issues, letter writing, etc.) and personable manner in dealing with valuable contact persons all over the U.S. as well as the volunteer personnel. I worked with her on many fund-raising projects and she is very effective. As one example of her expertise, she gained a $1500 grant from the Richardson Environmental Action League (REAL) to get new office space for TCONR, at a meeting we both attended.

Since June of last year we have worked together with the National Audubon Society. I am president of Prairie and Timbers Audubon Society, a local chapter north of Dallas, and Wilma has been the Program Chairman. She has succeeded in expanding the attendance at meetings by almost 200% with her excellent programs, which has resulted in increased membership. Her contribution to the chapter has been invaluable. As a self-starter, she has few peers. In our annual fund-raiser called "Birdathon", she was second in the group for the amount of donations received (out of $4333 she brought in $825).

Wilma is capable of functioning well in any kind of environment, structured or unstructured, from my own personal observations. She has excellent leadership capabilities and her dedication and committment to her work serves as an example to all. I would recommend her highly for the lobby internship. In my opinion I don't think you could find a more qualified person.

Very sincerely,

Carole Wilmoth

Dear Diane,

I am enclosing copies 2) Wilma Anderson's and Deborah Pruit's applications for the Rosalie Goodman Internship with LWV-US. As you recall, they are both on the LWU-D board. I think you mentioned when you were here that you'd like to know if anyone from Dallas applied. I can't believe that 2 actually have, but I think it's wonder ful. Hope at least one will make it. (D'I hate to have to choose.) Hope you're having a good summer, fondly, Julie L.

- 1. When and where did you first join the League? In 1986 in Dallas
- 2. What kinds of activities have you been involved in as a League member?

 At first I attended unit meetings and worked on a local study about solid waste management. I researched recycling possibilities and was appointed as a league representative to the newly created recycling center in Dallas. I also began involvement in the voter registration area. I was appointed to an off-board position of working with solid waste management. The following year I was appointed to a board position working with the local league's Speaker's Bureau. From this I was moved into an elected board position working with Voter's Service during the '89-'91 yrs.
 - 3. Briefly, please describe leadership positions you have held in the League; give dates and include names of Leagues if other than your current League.

The leadership positions I have described in question 2 reflect my previous involvement. The off-board assignment began in 1987. The board appointment was 1988 and elected position began in 1989 and continues for two years.

4. In what other community activities have you been involved? Please describe briefly.

I have been involved with the community relations teams within Southwestern Bell for over 5 years. I have also worked with the Telephone Pioneers in several volunteer projects over the last 7 years. I have worked with the Dallas Young Lawyers' Auxiliary and Texas Lawyers'Auxiliary since 1985, assisting in teen voter education projects. I am also on the board of Dallas Girls' Foundation, a local organization assisting troubled teenage girls. I am a member of the Dallas Jaycees and the Dallas Women's Foundation.

- I have a very outgoing and unprejudiced personality which allows me to develop friendships quickly. I am also inquisitive and will not hesitate to ask questions for clarification. I am politically active and have taken several law classes solely for my further understanding of the law. I have held jobs which required knowledge of regulatory laws and coordination of responses to intervenor requests. My special interests include education and adolescents. Most of the community groups of which I am a member have projects pertaining to my special interests, therefore I stay involved.
- 6. Why do you believe you are a good candidate for this internship?

 I believe in learning the right way to do things and, in politics there is much to be learned "behind the scenes". We should be aware of the need to network and the appropriate players. With time being of the essence, there is a definite need for efficiencies to be gained in this area. I also believe n credibility, and I would never attempt to act in any way which would tarnish or destroy the credibility of the League. I am also a corporate employee/citizen and feel there should be more "partnerships" betweenthe League and business. I am seeking ways to enhance these relationships and the legislative area is a joint interest of both the League and all business.
- 7. What do you hope to gain or learn as a Rosalie Goodman intern?

 I want very much to learn how Washington really works, not just the textbook version. I want to meet the people who support the politicians—the people who do the homework and make the recommendations. We need to make our voice be heard, however, the voice MUST be credible and sincere. I believe I can make a difference.
- 8. If you are selected as a Rosalie Goodman intern, how will you share this experience with your League and community? (See instruction sheet criterion 4).

I will use my experience to strengthen the Dallas-Washington connections. I think once personal contacts are made, the ongoing relationships are secure. I intend to share the knowledge through personal speeches and writings. I would definitely share with high school civics and government students because they are on the verge of having a voting voice and becoming an involved, verses apathetic, citizen. I have contacts within the handicapped and elderly communities. These people need information and assistance on how to have a credible voice also. I intend to effect my community with my gained knowledge.

Dear Ms. Gillis:

It is a pleasure for me to recommend Deborah A. Pruitt for the League of Women Voters Education Fund Internship Program.

Deborah has been very active in many areas of our community, although I know her mostly from her volunteer work with Goals for Dallas. The Goals program for the past twenty-five years has been a catalyst for bringing many and diverse groups together to achieve common goals. Deborah Pruitt has volunteered her time to help us with everything from conducting goals-setting meetings to news conferences. She is someone we have grown to count on.

Moreover, I feel that Deborah's involvement in Goals for Dallas has helped her develop the broad perspective of our community that is needed so much in every community today.

I hope that Deborah Pruitt will be given every consideration for the Internship Program.

Dear Ms. Gillis:

It is an honor to recommend Deborah A. Pruitt for the League of Women voters Education Fund Internship Program.

I have known Deborah for ten years and still marvel at the unfailing goodwill and sustained high energy that marks her participation in both community and business related activities. Since she is frequently the first to offer her services in a new project, she has repeatedly demonstrated the ability to work with minimal guidelines to accomplish her goals.

As a leader of a Girl Scout troop and an active supporter of various community programs for children, I have been the most impressed by Deborah's unqualified love and respect for other people, particularly children. This inherent response to others aids Deborah in effectively communicating with and enlisting the support of people with varied attitudes and abilities, even if they are strangers.

I would appreciate your consideration of Deborah for the Internship Program.

Dear Julie,

You write the most interesting President's Message of any of the ones I see published in local League VOTERs. I've been meaning to write and tell you that for some time, but those good intentions haven't gotten much further than the thought of doing it. This time, after having read and enjoyed your message in the June Dallas VOTER I've decided to let you read the plaudits I have been bestowing on you heretofore silently!

I appreciate your references to reading other VOTERS--would that other local League presidents did the same. There's so much to be gleaned from reading them and getting ideas for one's own League. It is also refreshing to have a president looking forward to a third year in office. If you keep that upbeat attitude you will not experience burnout. And then there's the readability of your message--serious thoughts well expressed.

I'm sure the members of the Dallas LWV turn to your column as one of the first things they read in the Dallas VOTER. I know I do. Keep up the good work!

Dear Julie:

Thank you for sending me a copy of your letter to Jean Peterson regarding items of interest to the big city League's workshop at Council '89. I can assure you that the topics you mention were foremost on everyone's mind and were much discussed and analyzed. It was a productive meeting for me, in that now I have a much clearer idea of the impact on local and state Leagues of this process. I hope that the dialogue will continue until mutually acceptable and effective resolutions are found for the issues of developing an involved membership and for financing a multi-level organization.

I'd like to tell you how very helpful and thorough your League's Membership Growth Plan is. You have, of course, pinpointed the the most important factor in successful membership recruitment - personal contact. Your focus for next year also emphasizes the most often stated reason for joining and staying in the League, effective work on the issues. Thank you very much for sharing the plan. May I contact you for input on a new leader's networking publication that is currently in the planning stages?

As you know, the LWV is sponsoring a national teleconference in November to be broadcast from the JCPenney facilities in Dallas. We are working closely with state Leagues to identify local Leagues that will participate in the teleconference at sites across the country. I understand the Dallas facilities are very small and local audience participation may be limited to presenters but I hope the Dallas League can be a part of this exciting event in other ways. If you have ideas that would help your League use this event as an opportunity to gain new members, increase visibility or raise money please let us know and we will do all we can to help make it happen.

In following up on the problems you raised in your April 20 letter to us, Julie Parent, Database Systems Manager, assures me that members Debbie O'Connor and Terence O'Connor now are coded as locally renewed. A memo regarding NRMs will be sent to all League Presidents very soon.

In the interim, let me say that local Leagues are encouraged to contact and involve nationally recruited members and may renew these members if they wish. National sends the first renewal notice to NRMs sixty days before their expiration date and will continue to try to renew these members until we are notified that they have renewed locally or until we receive a dues payment from them.

I look forward to working with you and the Dallas League in continuing to build a strong and effective League for the '90s.

Sincerely,

The League of Women Voters of Texas, as well as the Dallas League, will support your efforts to have a state statute enacted which will prohibit sex and other forms of discrimination by certain private clubs. The League may be listed as supporting the proposed legislation. We do request, however, that any public statements, written testimony, or letters to legislators be cleared in advance with Rebecca Bergstresser for LWV-T.

Please keep us informed of the progress of this effort. You may contact either Rebecca (350-2167) or Julie (352-4667) if you have questions or need further information.

I would be willing to accompany you and representatives of other interested groups to visit Rep. Wolens and Sen. If and when contacts need to be made with legislators from other counties, League participation should be cleared through Rebecca for the state League.

Dear Julie,

DSW SS SS SO

We were disappointed to learn from your letter of April 12, 1988 that the Dallas League has decided not to apply for a grant under the Agenda for Security debates project. It was our intention that Leagues have as much flexibility as possible in designing their debates, while including issues that have national scope and importance.

Included in the project's definition of international and national security are such issues as trade, balance of payments, international debt and defense (and its effect on the national deficit), in addition to such foreign policy issues as arms control and U.S. - Soviet relations. Leagues are encouraged to relate these issues to conditions in their own states and congressional districts. Of course, Leagues may choose whatever content they wish for one-half of the debate.

We hope that your League will reconsider its decision. At any rate, the suggested questions will be included in a publication, Agenda for Security, that will be sent to all League presidents and DPM's this summer. The questions will all deal with international and national security issues.

Please let us know if you have any further questions.

Dear Julie and Members of the League:

It gives me great pleasure to send greetings on behalf of the members of the national board to the members of the League of Women Voters of Dallas on the occasion of the 50th anniversary of its founding as the Dallas Branch of the Texas League, on April 13, 1938.

Yours is a proud tradition of achievement over the years—advocacy for comprehensive city planning and zoning, for affordable housing and for mass transportation. The Dallas League has also played an important role in school integration and in the fight to abolish the poll tax.

We salute the many achievements of the Dallas League of Women Voters and look forward with you to 50 more years of continued service to the community.

Dear Dorothy,

It was good talking to you again. Dallas League President Julie Lowenberg and I agree that it would be, as you suggested, a marvelous idea to have Nancy Neuman write a congratulatory letter to the League of Women Voters of Dallas on the occasion of its fiftieth anniversary. The letter would be read at our annual meeting, April 30, 1988. Our League was organized -- as the Dallas Branch of the Texas League of Women Voters -- on April 13, 1938.

Nancy may want to recognize the Dallas League for its solid achievements in the areas of:

- O Voting rights -- espcially in regard to abolition of the poll tax in 1967
- o School integration
- o Promotion of the community college concept
- Advocacy for affordable housing
- o Advocacy for comprehensive city planning and zoning
- o Advocacy for mass transportation

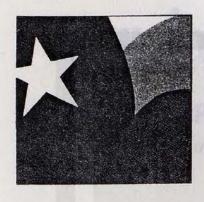

Please tell Nancy how much we appreciate her efforts on our behalf.

Thank you for your help in this matter.

II February 88

League of Women Voters of Dallas Julie Lowenberg, President

Dear Julie and members of the Dallas League,

Happy Fiftieth Anniversary! The celebration Thursday, February 25 at the Meadows Museum promises to be festive.

Occasions like this are perfect for remembering the League's foremothers and congratulating its current members and supporters. Not surprisingly, today's League is still building on the energy and foresight of its founders. It would be wonderful to say that their agenda had been fulfilled during the past fifty years, but we all know some of the same issues require periodic or even constant attention from those concerned with open, responsive, and accessible government.

The establishment of the Dallas League in 1938 marked an important point in the development of your city. It is fair to say that due to a half century of dedicated volunteer attention to civic affairs, citizens of Dallas are better informed about and better served by their local, state, and federal governments. The League has made a difference and it will continue to do so!

I join with the other members of the national board in wishing the League of Women Voters of Dallas all the best on this special anniversary and in the future.

Yours truly,

Dear Diane:

This letter is in response to your memo of November 23, 1987, requesting local Leagues with Education funds to review our bylaws, policies, and practices with respect thereto. The Dallas League's Education Fund seems to be functioning well and according to the guidelines set forth in the memo. We have a separate ed fund budget and a separately elected board; hold separate meetings and keep separate minutes; our ed funded publications are educational and are made available to the public as well as to members. Please let me know if the state office has not been receiving our ed fund minutes and annual budgets; I'm sure they have been sent.

Our ed fund trustees/officers have also received our ed fund bylaws, and, with the assistance of our legal advisor, Rebecca Hurley, attorney with the firm of Johnson & Swanson, have adopted a new set of bylaws, copy of which is enclosed. Ms. Hurley's address is 900 Jackson St., Dallas 75202-4499, and she has filed all the papers necessary to effectuate the new set of bylaws and to designate her as our registered agent.

I would be willing to participate in an LWV-TEF workshop in Austin, depending upon the date, of course. Phyllis Gould, who will become the ed fund (and LWV-D) treasurer in June, might also be interested. Generally speaking, Monday (with the 10-3 hours) is a better day for me than most but not March 7, April 4 or 18 or May 2 or 30.

Dear Julie:

After all your attempts to get the DPM subscriptions for your League straightened out, you definitely need to know that all six of your subscriptions were on the mailing list September 3, 1987. Those subscriptions will not expire until September 1988.

Unfortunately subscription entry began backing up the end of April when the process of combining the computerized membership, donor and subscription lists into one new system was begun. Both permanent staff and temporaries worked hard over the summer to enter the backlog of information and at present all subscriptions should be up to date. The list maintenance staff is now in a position to deal with subscriptions on an on-going basis and to solve problems as they come up. If you have any further difficulties with a DPM subscription, Angela Carter can help you.

On behalf of Harriette Burkhalter, chair of the Membership and Development Committee, you have our apologies for the difficulties you have encountered. As the new system is refined such difficulties will be reduced and brought under control.

Sincerely,

Faye Pritchard

Dallas City Council

JAN 191982

I am Barbara Materka, President of the League of Women Voters of Dallas, speaking today on the need for citizen participation in the transportation planning decision process.

The League of Women Voters believes that the conduct of government is the business and privilege of every citizen. Our primary goal is the informed and active participation of all citizens in their government.

For the past decade, the League has supported the concept of a regional transportation system and the inclusion of citizen education and participation early and during the entire transportation planning process. The League is pleased to find others share this belief that citizens should be involved early in the planning process. Our members have and will continue to cooperate with the Transportation Task Force in achieving common goals.

For example, a league member is spending twenty hours a week as the League liaison on the Task Force staff helping with policy direction, developing neighborhood communication lines and contacting organizations. Other league members are participating in the speakers bureau, serving on task forces in their communities and have volunteered to help as needed in this effort.

The League is encouraging all citizens in their individual communities to take this opportunity to participate in the decision making process by becoming informed and by communicating their preferences at neighborhood meetings.

Re: Public Hearing on Desegregation

I am Barbara Materka, President of the League of Women Voters of Dallas. The League has a long-Standing commitment to quality, integrated education in Dallas. It also supports citizen participation in government decision-making at all levels.

The League urges you to conduct your deliberations on the desegregation case in an open forum. We understand that the attorney-client relationship may require closed discussion of some matters, but we hope that those matters will be few. Open discussions should facilitate more accurate reporting by the media, as well as better public understanding of the issues.

We also urge you to do all you can, within the short time frame available to you, to maximize community participation in the decision-making process. You are to be commended for holding this public hearing, although the short notice and scant publicity are regrettable.

You are also to be commended for alerting PTAs and other community organizations to the need for quick responses to the court's request for remedies. We urge you, however, to clarify the processes by which decisions are being made. Otherwise, the community well question whether its recommendations are being considered. As you doubtless know, many people have worked hard to submit responses to the DISD administration by September 1. We trust that you have these proposals before you and that you will give them serious consideration.

Your decisions must have broad community support as they face the difficult tests of public opinion and judicial review. Such support is won by a sense of valid participation in the decision-making process.

Thank you.

This section allows spouses to make agreements after marriage concerning division and distribution of community property. This provision can become important in view of the provisions relating to management and control of property.

Section 5.43, Texas Family Code: Agreements Between Spouses Concerning Income or Property Derived from Separate Property

At any time, the spouses may agree that the income or property arising from the separate property then owned by one of them, or which may thereafter be acquired, shall be the separate property of the owner.

Added by Acts 1981, 67th Leg., p. 2964, ch. 782, S 2, eff. Sept. 1, 1981.

This section permits a spouse to designate the income derived or the property derived from separate property (revenues from separate property) as separate property. Without an agreement this type of property is characterized as community.

Section 5.44, Texas Family Code: Formalities of Agreements

Each agreement, partition, or exchange agreement made under this subchapter must be in writing and subscribed by all parties.

Added by Acts 1981, 67th Leg., p. 2964, ch. 782, S 2, eff. Sept. 1, 1981.

Section 5.46, Texas Family Code: Marital Agreements: Rights of Creditors, ...

(a) A provision of an agreement, partition, or exchange agreement made under this subchapter is void with respect to rights of a preexisting creditor whose rights are intended to be defrauded by it.

Added by Acts 1981, 67th Leg., p. 2964, ch. 782, S 2, eff. Sept. 1, 1981.

in other community property then existing or to be acquired, whereupon the portion or interest set aside to each spouse shall be and constitute a part of the separate property and estate of such spouse or future spouse; and the spouses may from time to time, by written instrument, agree between themselves that the income or property from all or part of the separate property then owned by one of them, or which thereafter might be acquired, shall be the separate property of that spouse; and if one spouse makes a gift of property to the other that gift is presumed to include all the income or property which might arise from that gift of property.

As amended November 4, 1980.

This section allows spouses and future spouses to make agreements regarding property ownership during marriage. The parties have the right to designate as their separate property that property which has heretofore been characterized as community property. Experts disagree as to whether this applies to earnings. Nevertheless, it would be unwise for a homemaker or future homemaker to become a party to an agreement designating "earnings" as separate property.

TEXAS FAMILY CODE, SUBCHAPTER C. PROPERTY AGREEMENTS

The following supercedes Sections 5.41 and 5.42 as set forth on pages 27 and 28 of the Handbook for Women's Legal Rights.

Section 5.41, et.seq., Texas Family Code: Agreement in Contemplation of Marriage

- (a) Before marriage, persons intending to marry may enter into a marital property agreement concerning their property then existing or to be acquired, as they may desire.
- (b) A minor capable of marrying but not otherwise capable of entering into a binding agreement may enter into a marital property agreement with the subscribed, written consent of the guardian of the minor's estate and with the approval of the probate court after the application, notice, and hearing required in the Probate Code for the sale of a minor's real estate, and if there be no guardian of the minor's estate, with the subscribed, written consent of the minor's managing conservator.

Amended by Acts 1981, 67th Leg., p. 2964, ch. 782, S 2, eff. Sept. 1, 1981.

This section permits antenuptial agreements regarding property ownership during marriage. Such agreements may change the character of property from separate to community or community to separate. Experts disagree as to whether this applies to personal earnings which are presently characterized as community property (see Section 5.22, Texas Family Code). Nevertheless, it would be unwise for a homemaker or future homemaker to become a party to an agreement designating personal earnings as separate property in light of the fact that Texas has no laws providing for alimony.

Section 5.42, Texas Family Code: Partition of Exchange of Community Property

At any time, the spouses may partition or exchange between themselves any part of their community property, then existing or to be acquired, as they may desire. Property or a property interest transferred to a spouse by a partition or exchange agreement becomes his or her separate property.

Amended by Acts 1981, 67th Leg., p. 2964, ch. 782, S 2, eff. Sept. 1, 1981.

of the same man but have never pressed charges.

Rape has the highest recidivism rate of any crime, and the individuals are usually psycho-social malfunctioning. Voluntary treatment programs would be worthwhile and cost-effective. More money is spent for incarceration and repeat violations. Many offenders are sexually assaulted, usually by strangers, at some point and this sets a pattern. Perhaps services could be made available to these persons as well.

Connecticut is generally felt to have the best treatment program, and center representatives travelled there last year to examine it. The program gets to the root of the problem, but it's difficult and intense and long-term help, is needed. The offender is evaluated physically and chemically, and sociological skills are used to examine feelings of inadequacy, passivity, sexual awareness and victim sensitivity.

This doesn't need to be an expensive program. In Connecticut, $100,000 or less covers the expenses of a director, supplies and a part-time mental health worker. They also make use of graduate students and volunteers.

Burnham:

It should be required that, about three days prior to the trial, a lawyer must file a motion stating the alibi witnesses to be put on and their names and addresses. This is a procedural matter that is required in other states. Presently, it is hard to check their alibis when they suddenly appear without warning at the trial. This method could be applied toward robbery as well and would prevent perjured testimony.

If consent is a defense, other rape offenses by the same man are not admissable. Therefore, it is widely used. A statute should be passed stating that, when consent is the defense, extraneous offenses can be admissable to show intent. The state should be allowed to use extraneous offenses to rebut the defense of consent.

APPENDIX

The following supplements pages 26-28 of the "Handbook for Women's Legal Rights." It adds and explains a constitutional amendment passed by the state legislature in 1980 pertaining to separate property agreements, and updates sections of the Family Code dealing with property.

TEXAS CONSTITUTION, ARTICLE 16, Section 15: Separate and community property of husband and wife

Sec. 15. All property, both real and personal, of a spouse owned or claimed before marriage, and that acquired afterward by gift, devise or descent, shall be the separate property of that spouse; and laws shall be passed more clearly defining the rights of the spouses, in relation to separate and community property; provided that persons about to marry and spouses, without the intention to defraud pre-existing creditors, may by written instrument from time to time partition between themselves all of part of their property, then existing or to be acquired, or exchange between themselves the community interest of one spouse or future spouse

We are now satisfied with the structure of the (rape crisis) center. Four years ago, it was put under the supervision of the County Medical Examiner's Office, which enable local control, designation as a service agency and a clearly defined role. We are under the wing of the criminal division and work with Dr. Charles Petty, chief medical examiner, who developed the first rape evidence kit in the U.S. Overall, the system works well and the center is perceived as non political and more service-oriented.

The center provides direct short and long-term counseling for rape victims, 24 hour crisis intervention service to hospitals, support to victims going through the criminal justice system, and training to doctors, police and mental health workers.

The FBI states rape as the fastest-growing crime. The center's caseload increased from 400 cases in 1976 to 1315 in 1980. This is in good part due to higher reporting numbers in Dallas, which has become a forerunner in setting up a system to deal with rape. A standard referral system has been established between the hospitals, police, district attorney's office, and through media reports. Texas has a progressive state law. A 1974 statute forbids a victim's sexual history from being brought out at the trial unless it is relevant to that case. Even then, it can only be discussed in the judge's quarters. In addition, if she feared bodily injury at the time of the rape, she does not have to prove she defended herself.

Dallas has the highest conviction rate in the country. Sentences range from 2 - 20 years for rape (without a weapon) and 5 - 99 years for aggravated rape, which can involve a weapon, threat or kidnapping.

Robinson: The Career Criminal Division of the Dallas County District Attorney's Office was set up to handle the most violent offenses in our society. During 1981, 42 of the cases involving the most violent sex offenses were tried and all 42 resulted in convictions by juries. The average sentence was 75.7 years, and there were 26 life sentences.

Burnham: The Rape Crisis Center is very helpful and offers practical guidance as well as emotional support. Dallas is getting a rub on rape statistics - we have the most reported rapes, but not necessarily the greatest number. Rape has a high priority with Henry Wade's office.

At times, the criminal is charged with burglary with intent to rape. This is a first degree felony and the rape charge isn't minimized, but it is often easier to prove than the rape charge by itself. There's nothing wrong with this and the penalties would be as stiff.

RAPE - SUGGESTED ADDITIONS OR CHANGES IN THE LAW:

James: The legal definition of aggravated rape should include use of physical force when the victim has been hurt.

Auxilliary offenses should be admissable in court. Presently, you cannot bring persons into a trial who claim they have been rape victims of the marriage, whichever is shorter. I believe the whole idea of alimony has a slim or no chance of passage in the legislature, however.

Stewart:

Alimony is necessary for a period of time, whether it be three to five years or dependent on the wife's plans, such as if she is starting medical school. The goal should be self—sufficiency, not life—long support. We are moving toward its acceptance, and it could happen within the next 10 years. One step toward it was the Supreme Court decision to deny military wives a portion of their ex-husband's retirement pay. That has a big effect in Texas. When and if alimony is passed, it will probably be discretionary with the courts, not mandatory, simply because people's circumstances vary so much. Obviously, it wouldn't be needed by the wealthy as it would by displaced homemakers or young people getting started.

Tater:

There is a need for alimony, particularly when the husband wants a divorce and the wife is unemployed. The Family Code discriminates against a wife who has not worked. This is a hard subject to deal with, since she chose not to. Possibly two years of alimony, schooling or training of some sort is needed to get a woman on her feet. For an older woman entering the work force, perhaps permanent support is necessary. Since alimony is not now provided by law, the only route available is a voluntary business contract between the two parties.

GARNISHMENT OF WAGES FOR CHILD SUPPORT PAYMENTS:

Solender: Article 16, sec. 28 of the Texas Constitution states that wages are not subject to garnishment. I'm in favor of garnishment for child support. It won't solve the problem, but it would make it slightly smaller. I don't think it has the slightest chance of passage, however.

Stewart:

I like the idea. Collection by the Internal Revenue Service would help. Dragging employers into enforcing it is not good, but it would be effective, except in the case of transients who would just quit if you got an order to garnish. The Texas Constitution says you can't garnish wages for debt, but case law says child support is not a debt. A change in the Family Code would be required, but not in the constitution. Garnishment would have less chance of passage by the state legislature than alimony, however, because alimony just involves two parties.

Tater:

Garnishment of wages is desirable. After all, children should eat. Texas is one of the few states that doesn't garnish wages. Women would have to keep track of their ex-husband's whereabouts, and some tracking would be possible through his social security number.

White:

Many of the people we work with are not at the same job long, so garnishment of wages wouldn't help much. It would be more effective when the person is established in employment. There's now a parent locator service offered by the state that tries to track down fathers through their social security numbers. Prior to that, you had to get a court order and send to the Baltimore office to get information, which took about three months to get a reply consisting of out-of-date information.

as amended September 1, 1979. This chapter allows a client to file a law suit in the domestic relation courts and ask for protective relief. The pleadings are very similar to those which must be filed in a divorce case itself, but without the request for divorce, or the allegation of marriage. PRO KINGS STREET OF THE PROPERTY

FAMILY CODE - OPINIONS

Rasor:

The Bar set up the Family Code project in the early 1960's, completing it in 1967. When it took effect in 1968, it took gender names out of the law. The Equal Rights Amendment, which had been discussed prior to the adoption of the code, once again was pushed and was passed. However, it made no measurable difference since discrimination had already been eliminated through the code's language. Today, no real discrimination is noticeable by law or institution.

Solender:

Gender neutral law renders hardship. The law is made neutral but not equal because of the disparity between the past histories of men and women.

Stewart:

I don't see any major problems with the Family Code; it's an enlightened document. The focus is now on the best interest of the child where qualifications of the parent were the previous criteria. The Family Code eliminates a mother's advantage; now you see more contests where both parents are equally fit.

FAMILY CODE - SUGGESTED ADDITIONS WELL AND THE PROPERTY OF THE PARTY OF THE PA

ALIMONY:

Rasor:

on all segments of sures and all topoline I think it is necessary. As long as we have traditional marriage with the wife staying home for years raising the children and not developing salable skills in the job market, there is a need for economic recompense. The current system does not offer a whole lot of encouragement for women to stay at home. On the other hand, the practice is frequently abused in states where it is awarded. I don't think it should entitle a woman to sit on her fanny. Alimony is a politically explosive issue. No legislator wants to put his or her head on a chopping block; as a result, it may never be passed.

Solender:

Traditionally, the marriage law has implied that the husband must support his family and that the wife's duty involves sexual availability and home management. The attitude is that, once the wife's responsibilities are no longer valid because of divorce, the obligation of support is also invalid. I feel, however, that a woman who gave up working and spent years raising children should be entitled to some compensation. In addition, the aged divorcee, upon entering the job market, will face (illegal but existent) job and age discrimination. She will also encounter a disparity in earning capacity, as she will earn 60 cents to a man's dollar. Prior to divorce, the wife can get temporary support, but Texas is the only state in the U.S. without post-separation alimony. The Bar has been working in this area, and one possibility being examined would provide its continuance for five years or the length

Solender: In a community property state such as Texas, partners come into marriage with separate property they had before or had received through gifts or inheritance. Community property is that which is earned during marriage. At the time of divorce, courts can order a division of community property, which doesn't necessarily have to be equal, since the courts should consider the situation of the parties. If a couple has any property at all, some of it is usually encumbered, so the court may have to divide it 75 - 25.

the Tan. The Equal Rights Amendment, which had been Calls involving domestic violence are the most dangerous for the police to answer. More are injured than on any other call. Then, many times the woman won't press charges or will drop them...Police response ranges from sensitive to callous.

Buck:

Until the 1981 session laws were passed in the state legislature, the police were very limited in their ability to help victims of domestic violence. Since they could not arrest the husband without a warrant unless they witnessed the violence or unless a felony assault had been committed, the police were actually helpless to intervene. Furthermore, since domestic violence situations are one of the most dangerous areas of police work, they were understandably reluctant to do anything. contests where both parants are count

Article 14.03 of the Texas Code of Criminal Procedure has the potential of finally allowing the police to take action in a domestic violence situation. This is a significant change in Texas law, for it authorizes the police to arrest in a misdemeanor assault case without having actually witnessed the assault.

The second new law in Texas, section 3.52 of the Family Code, has made it significantly more difficult to initially deal with victims of domestic violence. Formerly, a judge could order a husband through an ex parte order not to return to the house pending a temporary hearing. Thus, as long as the husband was served with process when he was not in the home, he could be effectively prevented from returning to the house for ten days, pending the temporary injunction hearing. Now, however, no one can be excluded from the home without a prior hearing. Thus, a domestic violence victim is required to find a place to live until the hearing can be held, or live in the same house with the husband after he has been served. This certainly makes things more difficult for the battered woman, especially if she has children, and must move with them.

Another new statute, effective September 1, 1981, amended Title Two of the Human Resources Code by adding Subtitle E. This statute provides for state funding of family violence shelters. The funds will come from liquor tax collections. One million dollars was originally funded, but apparently after certain federal cuts there remains only $900,000 in funding. This total allotment is then divided between 34 shelters which are presently active and operating in Texas. To the server of any funding 22.0 the Bar has beenworking in this area, and one possibility increase in number necessitated their being handled by masters.

Child support payments have gone through the courts for at least 30 years. No statistics are available to determine the percentage of compliance. Many people pay directly and the courts never hear of it. In these cases where the Child Support Payment Office has not been involved in sending and recording the money, our complaint office cannot help the receiving party if the payor defaults. We do have a procedure that, if followed, involves the payment office in future collection and recording, and we could intervene if payments aren't made after that.

Each judge has his or her own criteria in considering child support. However, one-third of a person's income seems to be the most the court will ask of the payor. If you set the payments higher, there's the increased chance that he or she won't pay at all. To obtain an increase in the amount, such as one to reflect inflation, another court hearing must be held unless this was addressed in the original decision. 9053 1931 911

The office's abilities are limited by the small staff of five persons which accommodates all nine courts. Obviously, enforcement hasn't kept up with the volume of clients. Ideally, every case would be monitored.

In addition, the payment office where the money is recorded and sent out stopped answering their phone in 1980, so our office now gets all the calls.

In 1981, there were 12,078 complaints processed by the office requiring 83,824 contacts. During this same period, 859 contempt motions were processed. Nearly all who go to jail for failure to pay child support are placed in the work-release program at Woodlawn.

Rasor:

Harris County annually deducts a small percentage of the money paid through child support to create a fund to (among other things) go break to after those who default on payments. especially if they have allocated that reserves placewhere can YTRAPORY

Rasor:

Before the family Code became effective in 1968, the man was the sole manager of community property; the only way a woman gained control of her one-half was if she died and left it in a will. The constitutional amendment governing pre-marital contracts on separate property (approved November 4, 1980) is still to be interpreted by the courts, but could have harsh effects on women. Future personal earnings come into question. A women should understand the community property system is destroyed with a prenuptial agreement, and she shouldn't sign. The results can be grossly unfair and can pose a real threat to family stability.

A mechanical, not substantive, change in the Family code should take place to improve methods of enforcing property divisions on divorce.

increase in number necessitated their being handled by masters. It was during that hearing that I would sometimes advise counseling. Now; judges only get the case when the divorce is ready to be finalized, so the suggestion of counseling, if it is recommended, usually comes from the divorce lawyer prior to acceptance of the case or during the master process.

Tater:

We have 10 to 12 marriage and live-in counseling cases a week and rarely do our referrals come from judges or lawyers. While I agree with the idea of it being suggested, I oppose an involuntary effort. To be successful, you must have two willing participants.

Solender: The real problem with no-fault is dealing with people who hate each other and these feelings can be ventilated through a custody battle. Parents need only to wait one year before contesting each decision. Whether it involves joint or absolute custody, there is no panacea for how you solve splitting up a family. Either way works a terrible hardship, and a lot of problems result. The concept of absolute custody for one with no legal privileges for the other is impractical, because a person won't pay child support if he or she has no rights. . . . there are no firm statistics on the percentage of men and women as custodians.

Tater: We work out a lot of joint custodies, and they are usually strictly personal agreements. A judge cannot dictate how a decision is going to work and how the physical arrangements should be handled because you'll often find they are not carried out that way in practice. More than before, we're finding many women giving up their children. Many times it's an economic reason - they have no money for child care. Some are wanting their freedom, however.

Rasor:

Title II of the Family Code, which took effect in January 1974 and deals with child custody, support, adoption and abuse, prohibits sex discrimination. As a result, we are seeing more fathers seeking and getting custody.

CHILD SUPPORT

Solender: Courts, like anyone else, have great difficulty forcing people to do things they don't want to do; and making fathers pay child support, especially if they have allocated their reserves elsewhere, can be impossible.

Stewart: The statute states that both parents have a responsibility to support their children. In determining the amount, the court looks at the needs of the child and the parent's ability to pay. In most cases, needs generally exceed ability, making the parent's income the major focus. The exception would be the extremely wealthy, where the children's needs become the limiting factor. The system is not working well. It is difficult to collect from the parent, the contempt process is expensive, and the appellate courts are making it much more technical and difficult to file documents and jail the negligent party. If your divorce decree isn't worded right, the court will declare it unenforceable. I would like to see some statutory changes to make

AREA PROFESSIONALS DISCUSS

WOMEN UNDER TEXAS LAW

During the 1981 convention of the League of Women Voters of the State of Texas, delegates adopted a state study item proposed by the Dallas League entitled "Women Under Texas Law." The purpose of this effort is to inform the membership about the wide range of laws affecting women, to determine how well they are working, to suggest desirable additions or changes, and to evaluate the effect of the Texas Equal Rights Amendment. Due to the large scope of such a project, the LWV-T and the LWV-D have focused on areas governed principally by state law - that is, areas of family law, including marriage, divorce, child support and custody, as well as property rights and domestic violence. In addition, the LWV-D addressed the subject of rape, in light of its increase, its physical and emotional impact on women and the importance of effective laws in convicting such criminals.

To quote Lavora Arizaga, state board member and project director, "We are not beginning this study in a vacuum. We have a national league position on equal rights. Our position as revised at the 1980 LWV-US convention is: 'Action to support ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment and to bring laws into compliance with the goals of the ERA.'"

The following resource materials will be helpful tools in examining state laws:

1) "Women Under Texas Law," prepared by the LWV-T (available at league general and unit meetings and through the office), which offers historical perspective, as well as an understandable, concise summary of laws pertaining to our study items, and 2) "Handbook for Women's Legal Rights", prepared by the Texas Young Lawyer's Association (enclosed), which quotes and briefly interprets a wide range of state laws affecting women, including those we are examining.

This paper serves as a supplement to the resource materials mentioned above, and gives a local perspective based on comments by area experts ranging professionally from marriage counseling to the Dallas County District Attorney's Office.

NO-FAULT DIVORCE TO THE PROPERTY OF THE PROPER Solender: No-fault became effective in Texas in 1970 and is a product of sound reasoning to do openly what had been done circuitously. Before, most states opposed divorce except in cases involving adultery and set up legal barriers. In an effort to circumvent the law, persons were forced to use frame-ups or interpretation of cruelty or go to Nevada. They were also told by their lawyers to lie. Eventually, it was conceded that this was a bad system, so the state went to no-fault. I agree with the revision; there is no sense in recrimination. Nofault works best, however, when there are no children, no property, no stakes. The seal of the same of the sam

Rasor: No-fault took some of the hypocrisy out of divorce proceedings as it eliminated lies about cruel treatment to establish who was at fault and who was lily white. This turned into a tacky, nasty kind of litigation. Divorce is now available to everyone and the social stigma has been removed. The no-fault system is now rooted in our culture and changes in the law are unlikely. One side effect of no-fault is that a virtuous wife has no leverage left and may be left in a semi-destitute condition.

Stewart:

No-fault had actually been in practice years before the statute was amended, and I don't believe there have been any harmful changes since its adoption. Although some might debate there has been a slight increase in divorce due to a perception that it is now okay, the number was already on the increase. Few persons contested cases prior to no-fault, and those who did hardly ever succeeded; those people always got a divorce if they wanted it.

MARRIAGE COUNSELING

Stewart:

Counseling is now seldom recommended, although everyone tried it out when the statute first went through. During that time, few marriage counselors reported successes, and it is now generally felt that counseling is advantageous only when sought by both parties. People often need temporary orders to govern their lives while waiting for divorce, and judges used to handle these hearings before their great

6. The Texas E.R.A. Although an Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution has been indefinitely deferred, it is useful (and encouraging) to remember that the Texas Constitution does have an E.R.A. passed by voters in 1972. Litigants seeking to overturn sex-based laws and regulations have not always been successful in invoking the state E.R.A., however. The case of Mercer v. Board of Trustees, North Forest Independent School District, 538 S.W.2d 201 (Tex. Civ. App. - Houston 1976), writ ref. n.r.e.), involving school hair length regulations for boys, set forth the standard to be used in challenges to sex-based rules "We cannot agree ... that the ERA admits of no exceptions to its prohibition of sex discrimination. Any classification based upon sex is a suspect classification ... subject to strictest judicial scrutiny. Any such classification must fall unless the party defending it can show that it is required by (1) physical characteristics, (2) other constitutional rights ... or (3) other compelling reasons." The hair regulations were held by the court to be valid, despite the fact that they applied to boys only, because "children are in the formative period" of their lives and the schools have a "compelling reason" to establish rules for them. In several recent cases in which fathers of illegitimate children have sought parental rights, challenging the provisions of the Family Code which are prejudicial to fathers of illegitimate children (as opposed to mothers of illegitimate children), their arguments have been refuted under the "other compelling reasons" test set forth in Mercer. See, e.g., In the Interest of T.E.T., 603 S.W.2d 793 (Tex. S.Ct. 1980): "... the gender-based distinction of the Texas statutory scheme [is] ... substantially related to the important state objective of promoting the best interest of children born out of wedlock and is substantially related to the achievement of this objective." See also In Re Baby Girl S., 628 S.W.2d 261 (Tex. App. 1982). The U.S. Supreme Court has recently agreed to hear an appeal of the latter case, however. See 51 U.S. Law Week 3532 (Jan. 18, 1983).

In cases involving child custody on divorce, as opposed to unwed parents' rights, the Texas Family Code is sex-neutral (see pp. 18-19 of WUTL). The courts, in determining custody questions, are to use the standard of "best interest of the child." However, in practice, many judges still seem to equate "best interest of the child" with granting custody to the mother, except in unusual circumstances. It is difficult for thwarted fathers to put forth ERA arguments in such cases because of the subjectivity of the "best interest" standard.

MYTH #3: The system protects battered women. Although it is a crime for a man to beat his wife, the criminal justice system is not particularly responsive to the needs of battered women. Even in cases where an arrest is made, a batterer can generally post bail and be released from jail to return home within the hour. Calling the police usually enrages an abusive man further and may increase the intensity of the assault. Other legal remedies, including peace bonds, temporary restraining orders, and protective orders, can have limited effectiveness, but there are constraints on their availability and appropriateness for some cases.

The D.V.I.A. also provided the League with the following client statistics, taken from intake forms on 144 women entering The Family Place in 1981:

rom a violent home situation. The length of stay is generally limted to 30 days. During the stay, individual and group counseling essions, information and referral services to community and employent resources, and advocacy services are offered to residents, inluding the children. The stated goal of these counseling programs s "to provide women the safety, resources and information they need o determine their future plans. The main thrust of the program is o build self-esteem, to teach clients to assess their own needs and ow to use community resources to obtain services, and to offer serices which will strengthen and improve family life."

D.V.I.A. also provides a 24-hour domestic violence hotline for omestic violence victims and abusers. The hotline makes it possible or D.V.I.A. to serve clients who need services but for whom shelter s not appropriate as well as to serve families who are eligible for helter but who cannot be accommodated due to lack of space. D.V.I.A. as also established a walk-in Help Center to provide short term inividual and group counseling, support, and advocacy and to provide ssessment services for children of abused parents and after-care ervices for ex-residents in the form of support groups. Other after-are services provided by D.V.I.A. aim to provide positive parenting xperiences and stress healthy interactions between parent and child and non-violent discipline.

The D.V.I.A.'s publicity contains a useful discussion of myths bout battering, as follows:

- YTH #1: Battering occurs more frequently among lower socio-economic groups and minority ethnic groups. Battering occurs at all economic levels and in all ethnic groups. It crosses class and cultural lines. It happens to women with high levels of education as well as to women who lack formal education. It happens among professionals, blue collar families, and those who are unemployed.
- YTH #2: Battered women could leave the violent relationship if they wanted to. There are many physical and emotional constraints that keep women in violent marriages. Among the situational factors are: economic dependence, lack of job skills and experience, lack of alternative housing options, and cultural and religious constraints. Emotional factors include: fear of husband's retaliation, fear of emotional damage to children, fear of loneliness, insecurity about skills for independent living, guilt about the failure of marriage, and hope that the husband will change. Added to these constraints are the feelings of helplessness and powerlessness engendered by living in an abusive relationship. The emotionally debilitating effects of spouse abuse are so potent that even women with greater financial, occupational, and personal resources feel trapped in violent relationships. and the no distor commons. The forthy Plane Sing polytics and either spouse would have owned if single, including personal earnings and income from separate property, is subject to the sole management and control of the spouse who would have owned such property if single (on death or divorce, however, such property would be considered as community). All other community property is subject to the joint management and control of the spouses.

WUTL points out that separate and community funds should be kept in different accounts and careful records kept because if the different types of property are so commingled that the separate funds cannot be traced to their separate origin, they will be deemed community.

A state constitutional amendment passed by voters in 1980 allows spouses to agree in writing that income from separate property shall be separate. This amendment could work to the detriment of non-working wives who have no separate property. No one should sign an agreement of this nature without adequate legal counsel, and each party to such agreement should have his and her own attorney.

- 4. Probate Code and community property. Some believe that the present Probate Code, §45, is unfair to a surviving spouse whose spouse has died intestate (without a will) because it provides that one-half of the deceased spouse's community property goes to the chil-In such a situation, where the children are minors, the property they inherit must be administered through a court-ordered and court-monitored quardianship, necessitating legal fees and bureaucratic The Real Estate, Probate and Trust Law section of the State Bar of Texas has proposed that §45 be amended to provide that all of the deceased spouse's one-half of the community would pass to the surviving spouse. According to attorney Allen Howeth, writing in the Texas Bar Journal in Jan. 1983, "this bill will allow persons who fail to make a will the same estate planning benefits which seem to be desired by a majority of persons with modest to medium sized estates ... this will be a bill which would greatly benefit the broad range of the public, particularly those in lower to middle income circumstances ..." Of course, having a will is always better than not having one, however!
- 5. Domestic violence. (The following information was provided to the League by the Domestic Violence Intervention Alliance of Dallas, Inc., P.O. Box 4216, Dallas, Texas 75208; phone 941-1991.) Dallas County is fortunate to have the Domestic Violence Intervention Alliance, Inc. (D.V.I.A.), founded in 1977 by certain individuals and representatives of civic and community organizations who share a concern for the problems of family violence. D.V.I.A. maintains the Family Place, Dallas' first and only shelter for battered women and their children, which opened in February, 1979, and has sheltered almost 600 women and 1000 children since that date. The Family Place provides emergency housing, food, clothing, health and hygiene supplies and transportation on a 24 hour daily basis to adult victims of domestic violence and their minor children who are in immediate physical danger and have no other resources. The Family Place thus provides temporary, emergency shelter to enable families to remove themselves

Except for the five year requirement, the proposed legislation is just what the League would like to see enacted. The Family Law Section of the State Bar (though not the State Bar as a whole) also supports S.B. 537. Another similar bill, S.B. 632, has also been introduced, but it is more restrictive in scope.

Redefinition of rape. The League also reached consensus concerning the definition of rape during its 1982 study and supports a change in Texas laws to provide that sexual intercourse or deviate sexual intercourse with one's spouse without the consent of that spouse shall be a criminal offense punishable on the same basis as rape or sexual abuse of any other person. This proposal would change the current law in several respects. The statute now in effect states that "a person commits an offense if he has sexual intercourse with a female not his wife without the female's consent." (emphasis added) The Leaque's consensus position is advocating a broadening of this statute to include as criminal not only unwanted sexual intercourse but also unwanted deviate sexual intercourse, to include females as well as males as possible offenders and to include as criminal unwanted assaults on spouses. In effect, the change would define rape as any unwanted sexual assaults on persons of either sex, by persons of either sex, using hands, bottles, corncobs or whatever. Such behavior would be criminal whether or not the parties were married.

At least one recent case, from the state of Virginia, has held that a husband may be prosecuted for the rape of his estranged wife. Commonwealth v. Weishaupt, discussed in Family Law Reporter, Vol. 9, No. 16, Feb. 22, 1983. The Virginia rape statute is apparently similar to that of Texas, and perhaps the courts here could reach a similar verdict. But what the League is proposing is a statute that would make possible prosecution for rape while the husband and wife are living together.

In answer to the possible argument that a broadening of the rape statute to include assaults by husbands on wives would bring into the courts a time consuming flood of cases which are really of a personal nature and inappropriate for judicial determination, it should be noted that abused spouses are usually reluctant to seek court intervention. See WUTL, p.23. Furthermore, most of us are aware of the often indifferent attitude of prosecutors toward even "conventional" (i.e., non-spouse) rape victims.

3. Types of property recognized under Texas law. An understanding of property classifications will facilitate discussion of both divorce and estate planning questions. A spouse's separate property consists, generally, of property owned before marriage and property acquired by gift or inheritance during marriage. Each spouse has sole management and control of his or her separate property. Community property is the property, other than separate property, acquired by either spouse during marriage, including wages and income from both separate and community property. However, community property that

1. Post divorce payments. As a result of consensus taken during the 1982 study of Women Under Texas Law, the League is now advocating a change in the Texas laws that will permit courts to award post divorce payments to a spouse where appropriate. The traditional and theoretical view is that in community property states such as Texas, these payments are unnecessary because here both spouses share the gains of their marriage equally and these gains will be divided upon divorce. This view overlooks the reality that often there is very little community estate to divide at the time of divorce even though one party may have significant earning power and/or own considerable separate property. well as males as possible offenders and to includ

In dividing community property upon divorce, Texas courts have often attempted to take into account such factors as fault, employment opportunities of both spouses, pensions, health, and child care responsibility, and have made equitable, rather than equal, distribution their guideline. See Murff v. Murff, 615 S.W.2d 696 (Tex. S.Ct. 1981). See also the relevant statute, Sec. 3.63 of the Texas Family Code which provides that "in a decree of divorce ... the Court shall order a division of the estate of the parties in a manner that the court deems just and right ... " However, a recent case, Cameron v. Cameron, 641 S.W. 2d 210 (Tex. S.Ct. 1982), demonstrates the limitations of equitable distribution under the present law: The Supreme Court here held that the statute which authorizes divorce courts to divide the parties' estate does not empower the courts to divest eithe party of his or her separate property. In other words, only the community estate can be divided. In its opinion the court stated that "if there is a need for permanent alimony, it must come from the legis lature, where the policy arguments can be fully addressed by the whole public."

A bill has been introduced in the current legislative session which would provide for post divorce payments. It is Senate Bill 537 introduced by Caperton and as of this time has been referred to the Senate Judiciary Committee, chaired by Mauzy of Dallas. The League is strongly in support of this legislation which provides that a divorce court may order post-judgment support payments which could be enforced or modified in the same manner as child support orders. Post divorce payments could not be ordered if the duration of the marriage was less than five years, unless the spouse seeking support had become physically disabled during the marriage. The support order would terminate automatically on remarriage or death of the recipient, or cohabitation on a continuing, conjugal basis.

men Under Tex

Do you have a secret or not-so-secret desire to be an actor? an attorney? of just to learn more about the current status of women under Texas law?

At the May 11/12 unit meetings you'll have ample opportunity to fulfill all of these wishes.

Come prepared to participate as we focus on several imaginary case histories of women with not so imaginary legal problems (in divorce, child custody, community property, abusive spouses) and attempt to give them the benefit of our expertise. The expertise can be gleaned from the booklet, Exercising Your Legal Rights, published by LWV-T in 1983 and mailed to all LWV-D members during April; from Women Under Texas Law, published by LWV-T in 1982; and from the discussion leaders at each unit.

We will also review and receive new information on the following consensus positions taken last year as part of LWV-T's study of Women Under Texas Law:

*The League of Women Voters of Texas supports a change in Texas laws to enable a court to award post-divorce payment(s) to a spouse when appropriate.

*The League of Women Voters of Texas supports a change in Texas laws to provide that sexual intercourse or deviate sexual intercourse with one's spouse without the consent of that spouse shall be a criminal offense punishable on the same basis as rape or sexual abuse of any other person.

These meetings should be both lively and informative. Plan to attend the unit of your choice -- and bring a guest!

FLOODPLAIN

MANAGEMENT

OCTOBER 1983

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS OF DALLAS

PRIMER ON FLOODPLAIN MANAGEMENT

Many projects proposed by developers, cities, and the federal government involve floodplains in one way or another. These projects include everything from building large levee systems and lakes, to channelizing small portions of local creeks. In 1970-71, the League of Women Voters of Dallas developed several general position relating to floodplain management. We support:

- --Planned public acquisitions of floodplains
- -- Enforcement of zoning laws for floodplains not in public ownership
- --Comprehensive subdivision regulations regarding open space requirements and preservation of natural stream corridors for use by all citizens
 - --Development of regional plans for coordinating open space development in the Trinity River basin.

With numerous proposed projects that could alter the floodplains of this area, now is an appropriate time to educate ourselves about: 1) the principles of floodplain management, 2) floodplain management in Dallas, and 3) the more significant projects in Dallas that affect floodplains.

I. PRINCIPLES OF FLOODPLAIN MANAGEMENT

A floodplain is an area that is periodically inundated by runoff from rainfall events. A floodplain can be divided into two parts, the floodway and the floodfringe. Floodways carry the majority of the floodwaters and usually include the channel and part of the overbank. Flooding is usually deeper and velocities higher in the floodway. Floodfringes are areas of shallow flooding and slower water velocities.

Boundaries of floodplains vary according to the amount of the rainfall and the corresponding amount of runoff that must move down a creek or river. The magnitude of a storm is measured by its ability to be equaled or exceeded in size by another storm in the same year. A flood that occurs on average once every 100 years has a 1 percent chance of occurring in any one year. This flood is called the 100-year flood or base flood. Most floodplain management practices try to protect against the 100-year flood.

Flood protection is possible through the use of proper floodplain management techniques. The two major types of management are structural and nonstructural.

A. Structural Floodplain Management Techniques

Structural techniques involve the construction of some type of device or structure. Common techniques include levees, berms, and dikes which are all mounds of earth that act to keep flood waters from spreading out. Channels and swales define paths for water to flow and can reduce flooding when channel capacities are expanded to a point at which all the water stays in the channel. Reservoirs and detention basins provide storage areas for flood water. Flow out of these areas is controlled so that flooding does not occur.

Structural floodplain management techniques can be appropriate for solving certain flooding problems. Buildings have often been constructed in floodplains because people did not know better, or the techniques to calculate floodplain boundaries underestimated the floodplain's size. When development has already occurred in the floodplain, there is usually little open land remaining for storage of flood waters. The only way to eliminate the flood hazard in these areas is to use structural techniques because they require less area than nonstructural techniques. This means that they may also make more land available for future development by protecting the land from flooding.

These are some drawbacks to using structural techniques. If the flood control structures fail, the flood damage is substantially higher than if nothing had ever been built in the original floodplain. For example, people come to expect that the structural techniques will always be there and forget the original extent of the floodplain. Buildings are then erected in areas that were previously in the floodplain. Levees, in particular, have this disadvantage. Levees and other structural techniques are often unsightly, but with additional money and imagination, the aesthetics of these techniques can be improved.

Another disadvantage of structural techniques is their tendency to alter the ecology of creeks. Siltation patterns are changed, and existing vegetation is removed or affected in many instances. The construction costs of these techniques are frequently borne by all taxpayers because the large scale of many of these projects prevents those who accrue the direct benefits from being able to pay for the entire project cost.

What is often forgotten about levees, channels, and reservoirs is their need for routine and long term maintenance. Levees must be mowed regularly; channels must be kept clear of weeds and debris. Reservoirs and channels must be dredged periodically to remove deposited silt. Over a period of many years, channel linings have to be replaced. Without proper maintenance, structural techniques can fail to protect against floods.

B. Nonstructural Floodplain Management Techniques

Nonstructural management techniques are generally used for areas undergoing development because it is still possible to preserve and retain the floodplain in its entirety. The purpose of most nonstructural techniques is to keep future development out of floodplains. Flood prone areas are made available for parks, recreation areas, agriculture, and other uses that will not be significantly damaged by floods. Examples of nonstructural techniques include warning signs and gates, federal flood insurance for existing flooded homes and businesses, and zoning regulations to prevent new homes and businesses from being built in floodplains. These techniques are less costly to the taxpayers, although they may eliminate developable areas in a floodplain that would enlarge the tax base.

Nonstructural techniques have some advantages over structural techniques. They are based on nature. Floodplains remain as they would naturally be. Their ecology does not undergo as large a change as it would with structural techniques. The aesthetics of an area do not change. Preserved floodplains in urban areas provide open space.

In spite of the advantages, nonstructural techniques can be inappropriate for solving certain problems like existing flooding hazards. Homes already in a floodplain would continue to flood. Governments could purchase these homes and relocate the families, but such actions are often viewed unfavorably by those being moved.

When using nonstructural techniques, care is necessary in determining floodplain boundaries; otherwise, people who think that they are not in the flooplain might later find themselves there. This is likely to happen when development occurs first in the downstream portion of a watershed and then later in upstream areas. Future upstream development can produce unexpected runoff that would expand the floodplain downstream. Runoff calculations, therefore, must be based on fully developed watershed conditions. Problems arise when cities do not use fully developed watershed conditions to define floodplain boundaries.

One complaint that some developers have against nonstructural management techniques is that either developers lose money, or homeowners must pay more for homes in subdivisions adjacent to creeks. Developers pay for both floodplain land and developable land when they buy a large tract. The floodplain, though, cannot be developed or sold, so the cost of that land is spread out among the usable lots.

Nonstructural techniques, like structural ones, require maintenance. Creeks must be cleared of trash and debris or unexpected flooding can occur. Warning signs and gates must be kept operational and in good condition. If maintenance is not performed, additional flooding can occur.

C. Filling

One common activity in floodplains, filling, has elements of both structural and nonstructural techniques. Certain parts of some floodplains can be filled in with dirt, with little or no negative effects on flooding. These filled areas, thus, are not susceptible to flooding so they can be reclaimed for development. Filling is structural in the sense that floodplains are altered, but it is nonstructural in the sense that it is permanent if done correctly. If incorrectly done, it can cause additional flooding. Fills must be properly installed to prevent erosion or settling of the fill. Settling can be caused by using poor fill materials like chunks of concrete or metal scraps that cannot be properly compacted.

Filling can create problems when cities allow fills to increase flood elevations, and forget to check the cumulative effects of several fills along the same creek. Illegal filling or the dumping of materials in floodplains is quite common and can increase flooding.

II. FLOODPLAIN MANAGEMENT IN DALLAS

The Trinity River drains all of the Metroplex area. As it enters the western edge of Dallas, two forks—the West Fork and the Elm Fork—merge to form the main stem of the Trinity River. The West Fork flows through Fort Worth, where it is polluted from urban runoff. Effluent from Fort Worth's Village Creek wastewater treatment plant and the Trinity River Authority's Central treatment plant comprise most of the West Fork's flow during low flow periods when there is little rain. In contrast, the Elm Fork's water quality is much better. Water from Lake Lewisville, Lake Grapevine, and the future Lake Ray Roberts flows down the Elm Fork to a point where the Dallas Water Utilities and the Park Cities Municipal Utility District pick it up for water supply purposes.

Besides the two major branches of the Trinity River, local creeks in Dallas eventually flow into the Trinity. Notable creeks include White Rock, Turtle, and Bachman Creeks in North Dallas, Peaks Branch in South Dallas, the Sumps in the Stemmons Industrial District, Mill Creek in Downtown Dallas, and Five Mile Creek in Oak Cliff.

The city's policies on how to manage these creeks and their floodplains have changed over the years from structural floodplain management techniques to a combination of structural and nonstructural techniques. For example, Mill Creek once drained the area east of North Central Expressway from Mockingbird to downtown Dallas. This creek was entirely enclosed in underground pipes during the mid-1930's. Peaks Branch, which drains parts of East and South Dallas, is enclosed for most of its length except for a channelized portion in South Dallas. Voters recently approved $13 million in bonds for further structural alterations to this creek.

In contrast to the above mentioned creeks, major portions of Turtle Creek and Five Mile Creek exemplify areas in which nonstructural floodplain management techniques are in use. Yet, even in these creeks, the city uses some structural techniques.

Current city policy is to leave creeks in their natural condition as much as possible, especially in residential areas. Deviations from this policy occur when existing flooding hazards are identified and can only be eliminated with structural solutions. Commonly used structural techniques are channels, swales, and detention basins. Techniques that are seldom if ever used include construction of levees along creeks, and allowing houses and other structures to be built on piers.

Instead of levees, the city allows floodfringe areas to be filled if the fill plan meets rigid engineering and environmental criteria. One of the criteria used to evaluate whether a fill can be allowed is that the water surface elevation of the 100-year flood cannot be increased.

Other features of the city's floodplain management program is participation in the federal flood insurance program. This makes flood insurance available to owners of houses and other structures built in the floodplains before there were codes and ordinances to prevent their construction. Now, the city's zoning ordinances and codes prohibit the construction of buildings in the floodplain unless correct filling has occurred.

In summary, Dallas tries to leave the creeks and floodplains in a natural condition as much as possible. However, when flooding hazards exist in already developed areas, or when it can be proven that the floodplain can be filled without increasing the flood threat on anyone else, then structural floodplain management techniques are used.

III. CURRENT PROJECTS AFFECTING THE TRINITY RIVER NEAR DALLAS

Several major projects currently involve floodplains managed by the City of Dallas. Others have been proposed and are under study.

A. Maintenance of the Dallas Floodway

Maintenance of the existing Dallas Floodway and its sumps is an ongoing city project. The floodway is formed by levees on either side of the river. It runs from west of Westmoreland Road to Corinth Street. The floodway area and the levees are clearly visible when driving over the I-30 bridge or looking out of the Hyatt Regency Hotel. The 30-foot high levees keep floodwaters from inundating the Stemmons Industrial District and parts of downtown. With the levees, the Adolphus Hotel, the World Trade Center, and the Anatole Hotel would be in the 100-year floodplain. If the levees failed during a major flood, damage to property along would be catastrophic.

Proper maintenance of the levees, which includes mowing of the floodway, removing trash and debris collected on the piers of the bridges, and dredging of channels within the floodway itself, is of prime importance. The levees themselves sometimes need emergency maintenance when part of the dirt making up the levee begins to slide down the slope of the levee.

In addition, the sump areas must be maintained or the interior drainage system would flood. Sump maintenance includes mowing and trash removal, but it also includes ensuring the proper functioning of pumps. These pumps are used to drain the sumps into the Trinity during high flow events when the runoff cannot flow by gravity into the river. Pump stations are located at six points along the river. The city spends approximately $300,000 per year on the electric bill to operate the pumps, and $70,000 per year on their maintenance. All of these maintenance activities are routine in nature and are handled as such by the River Levee District of the city's Streets and Sanitation Department.

There are also periodic maintenance needs. For example, the sumps have silted up over the years. Their design capacity is for the 100-year flood, but some estimates of their current capacity go as low as the 25-year flood. To restore the storage capacity, the sumps will need to be desilted (or excavated).

Dredging and widening of the Trinity's main channel is already being planned. These actions will facilitate gravity flow into the river from sump areas. Approximately $8 million has been set aside for this project alone.

Another periodic maintenance activity is to increase the height of those levees that have settled over the years. Some sections of the levees need to be heightened by several feet in order to avoid overflow in a major flood.

B. Westmoreland Park

Some of the problems of the Dallas Floodway are that the land is not used for anything and the area is not aesthetically pleasing. The city's Park and Recreation Department is planning a park in the levees in the vicinity of Westmoreland Road. Playing fields and picnic areas are being included in the park design.

C. Town Lake

The idea for a lake adjacent to downtown Dallas was first proposed early in this century. The vision of what this lake would be like has changed over the years, but in 1975, plans for Town Lake were formalized by Albert Halff Associates. The Halff plan calls for a 405-acre lake to be excavated from the floor of the existing floodway, with an average depth of eight feet. The lake would be built in four phases for a total cost of between $109 million and $139 million in 1982 dollars. The range in the estimated cost is due to uncertainty about the need to bypass the water from the West Fork around the lake, so that this water would not enter the lake.

Voters defeated a bond program to finance Town Lake in 1978. The defeat was attributed to several reasons, including the high cost of the project, and lack of information about the environmental and socio-economic impacts of the lake.

In the last few years, renewed interest in this project has led to a restudy of how to finance the lake. Financing could not be handled through a combination of tax increment financing and bond sales. Renewed interest has also led to an upcoming study of the environmental and socio-economic ramifications of building the lake. The expected water quality conditions in the lake will be reevaluated, and a determination will be made of whether soil in the floodway is contaminated. The nature of expected redevelopment around the lake will be identified along with its impact in terms of traffic, housing, and relocation of people and business, among other considerations. This consultant study will be conducted over the course of the next year. Recommendations from the study will include whether or not Town Lake should be built.

D. Elm Fork Development

Pressures to develop the Elm Fork floodplain are large because the floodplain is quite broad and flat. Unlike the Stemmons Industrial District, levees do not line the Elm Fork, therefore, the floodplain is several miles wide in some sections. For example, as one drives north on I-35 passing the intersection of Walnut Hill, the Elm Fork floodplain is on both sides of the freeway. Many industrial and commercial establishments were built in this area prior to enactment of strong floodplain management policies and ordinances. Protection of these properties could be offered by construction of levees along the Elm Fork. The levee on the Dallas side of the river would run along Luna road. Such a levee system has not been funded, and there are no plans to seek funding. Plans for this system call for open space and recreational uses within the floodway. Channelization, with its corresponding destruction of the existing channel and vegetation, will not be done.

Upstream from Royal Lane, the Las Colinas Corporation is planning a large excavated lake not unlike Town Lake. This project was controversial for several reasons, including the filling of large areas of the floodplain, the destruction and alteration of the natural channel and existing forests, and the loss of open space. After granting some concessions to environmental groups, Las Colinas received approval to proceed with the project.

Further upstream from Las Colinas, even more major alterations to the Elm Fork floodplain are being planned and built. Levees protecting development through Farmers Branch, Carrollton, and Irving have been built. Swales to help convey floodwaters more efficiently are planned for the new floodways, although few provisions have been made for recreational or scenic uses.

E. Dallas Floodway Extension Project

The Elm Fork is not the only location where there are plans to construct levees. The Corps of Engineers in conjunction with the Trinity River Authority developed plans to extend Dallas' existing levees from their endpoint at Corinth Street to I-635 in southeast Dallas. These levees were a part of the Corps' 1964 plans to build a navigation channel from the Gulf Coast to Fort Worth. Like the existing levees, the original plans for the floodway extension called for parallel levees 2000 feet apart and a large navigation channel in between the levees. Recreational features of the plan included park areas outside the floodway area, away from the river.

In 1973, voters in 17 counties defeated the navigation and levee project. The Corps then began altering plans for the Dallas levee portion of the project. The purpose of the alterations was not only to make the levees more environmentally sensitive while still protecting existing structures from flooding, but also to open up previous floodplain areas for development.

The revised levee plan calls for parallel levees for only a portion of the project length. The floodplain under this plan varies in width from 2000 to 6000 feet. The navigation channel was deleted, and in its stead are the natural channel for low flow conditions and a 200 foot bottom width swale to handle higher flows. Although this channel would destroy significant areas of bottom-land hardwoods, the majority of the existing vegetation and forests would remain. Park facilities would be inside the levees.

This plan was not complete when it was presented to Dallas voters in a 1978 bond election. Again, voters defeated the project. The Corps went on to complete the plans in 1979, and they have continued to study various aspects of the project. In August of 1982, the Corps asked the city to state by June of 1983 whether the city would fund the local share of the project costs. The local share in 1982 dollars amounted to $59.5 million of the total project cost of $129 million.

It appeared late last spring that the city council would formally address the question posed by the Corps. However, the city later decided to postpone consideration of funding the local share for a period of several years. It was felt by the City of Dallas that it has too many other more immediate uses for bond funds than the Floodway Extension Project. This project is not dead, and it can be expected to be the subject of future discussions in five to ten years.

F. Trinity River State Park
This past spring, local environmental groups worked successfully with state representatives on a bill to establish a state park in the Floodway Extension area. The park will include a 200 foot wide strip of land on either side of the Trinity River channel from Corinth Street to I-635. Several larger parcels near the confluence of White Rock Creek and the Trinity will also be part of the park. Land will be purchased as state funds become available. It is hoped that the City of Dallas will operate and maintain the park because no funds have been provided for park maintenance or improvements. Park facilities will basically be limited to natural trails.

LOCAL POLICIES STATEMENT

The Local Policies Statement, previously known as the Statement of Board Policies, needs to reviewed and adopted each year by the Board of the League. The Policies Review Committee recommends retaining the Statement as it appears on pages 22-23 of the Member Handbook 1978-79 with the following additions:

- 11. DIRECTORY: The Directory of the League shall not be used for other than League purposes without prior Board approval. It is the responsibility of members to notify the office how they wish their name to be listed in the Directory. Member recruitment materials and dues notices shall contain a statement to this effect.
- 14. VOTER: The local VOTER may carry announcements of other organizations' activities when they directly relate to League program or concerns, if space is available in the VOTER. Announcements may not be carried if they conflict with League meeting dates and times. Exceptions may be made on a case-by-case basis by the Board.

The League of Women Voters is only as strong an organization as it's membership makes it. From time to time, we need to evaluate what we are and where we are going.

What are your ideas about League and your involvement or 'un-involvement' in the organization? Won't you please take a little time to answer the Every-member Questionnaire that is enclosed?

The League of Women Voters exists to "promote political responsibility through informed and active participation of citizens in government". If this is truly so, why are so few of us involved in party politics; attending public hearings; speaking out on the crises that face our community; writing to the editors, etc?, Why, out of a membership of 650 or so, is such a small percentage doing the actual resource work, finance calling, public speaking, discussion leading, and program making?

You don't need to sign the questionnaire, but we hope that you will want to. Use extra paper if you need to. Also, feel free to call me if you have additional questions or comments that you wish to make.

Please return the completed questionnaire by March 1.

Sincerely,

Lois Stromberg

city and county governments face unprecedented challenges and new responsibilities. It's fortunate that other organizations are responding to immediate human needs, but who can provide the nonpartisan, well-researched information we need to make informed decisions about candidates and policy issues in a time of profound change? Only the League.

Your contribution to the League of Women Voters of Dallas furnishes much-needed support for our local operating expenses, or your tax deductible contribution to the Dallas Education Fund can help with our study and voter service activities. Pither way, your support for the League maximizes not only our collective potential as an organization, but also your personal effectiveness as a citizen and Dallas resident. We're well worth it, and so are you!

Sincerely,

Rebecco

Julie Lowenberg, President LWV-Dallas 2727 Inwood Road Dallas TX 75235

Dear Julie:

It was really nice to see you yesterday, and it was especially nice that you drove through that dreadful weather to come to lunch!

I meant to talk to you about this yesterday, but I forgot. LWV-Texas and LWV-Texas Education Fund are being audited. LWV-Houston was audited a few months ago. Twenty thousand nonprofits are apparently being audited this year in an effort to crack down on both 501(c)(3) and 501(c)(4) organizations. In our case, they are especially interested in the relationship between T and TEF. We expect to do just fine (but are not looking forward to assembling all the materials required), but we want the other Leagues with Ed Funds to know what is happening in case they too are audited.

I appreciated your reply to my request for minutes, etc. from your Ed Fund. We are not going to hold a meeting in the near future, but we are reading minutes more attentively so that we can let people know if we see something that might look strange to an IRS agent. Looking strange does not mean that anything is necessarily illegal!

The attached notes (and I do mean notes) list a few things that I observed in reading your D and DEF minutes (yes, they do come to us, and thank you). Please recognize that I am well aware that minutes cannot be taken at face value, that sometimes semantics make something seem to be a problem when it is not. I would, however, like you to see and share my observations because they address the items that Houston was asked about when they were audited, the type of items referred to in my earlier memo. Apparently, the IRS pays a lot of attention to minutes and articles of incorporation and trust agreements as well as financial records.

If you have any questions about this, let me know. I have full confidence that you are spending money properly, which is the bottom line, but I hope you will find these observations useful.

I am looking forward to seeing you and other Dallas members at Council in April!

Sincerely,

Diane B. Sheridan Chair

ORDER OF BUSINESS:

- 1. Roll Call: Present: Lowenberg, Koblitz, Van Ort, Monson, Armour, Johnson, Harwig, Folz, Fugger, Gores, Gorman, Greyson, Lerner, Peppard, Smith, Stein. Absent: Fogarty, Glackin, Reed, Scullock, Vogelson, Wensley. Guest: Eleanor Sutherland, Office Manager.
- 2. Secretary's Report: Under ACTION, page 5, 3rd paragraph, 6th line, following "support of" insert or opposition to. Under PROGRAM, page 6, 3rd paragraph, 10th word should be hand. The minutes of the February meeting were approved as corrected.
- 3. Treasurer's Report: Helen Harwig briefly reviewed the February report. She point out that the $607.58 Program expenditure covers bills paid for the Anniversary Event, the final cost of which will be more than covered by special gifts. She also asked the trustees of the LWV-D Education Fund to file the Ed Fund Treasurer's Report (yellow sheet) with Ed Fund minutes. Her complete report is on file.

4. President's Report and Announcements: ACTION:

- --- Julie Lowenberg requested discussion on the proposal that LWV-D rejoin the Texas Coalition for Juvenile Justice, dues $40. The motion to rejoin was made by Pam Stein, seconded and passed. Lowenberg will appoint LWV-D representatives to TCJJ.
- -- LWV-D has been asked to be a sponsor of the 2nd Congress of Texas Bioregions, June 9 12, at the DuBose Natural Farm near Wimberley, Texas. This is a gathering of persons from throughout the state who are committed to an ecologically sound society. No financial commitment is required. The League name would be listed on publicity. Mary Koblitz was appointed to investigate what other groups are sponsoring and to report to next month's board meeting with a recommendation.
- --- None of the units with members in state legislative district 114 expressed interest in sponsoring a candidate debate in the Republican runoff. However, Donna Robertson has indicated a willingness to coordinate plans for a small scale meet-the-candidate coffee in a member's home. The board authorized Robertson to proceed with these plans and also to invite the Democratic candidate.
- --- LWV-Houston has asked if LWV-D would be interested in joining with them and several other Texas Leagues in asking American Airlines for a special air fare deal (or donation of air fares?) to the LWVUS convention in June. Lowenberg was authorized to tell LWV-Houston that we wish to participate but that we still plan to ask AA for their usual contribution to our development drive.

LWV-Dallas March 1988 Board Meeting Minutes, p. 2

INFORMATION:

- --- Lowenberg, Koblitz, Stein, and Van Ort met with Adlene Harrison and Sam Garner of Coalition 16 to discuss whether and how LWV-D wishes to support DART in the upcoming (June?) referendum. Stein wrote follow-up letters to DART. Copies of letters from Charles Anderson of DART and Sam Garner of Coalition 16 to Stein regarding the bond election are on file. The board will wait a month to watch developments before deciding on whether and how to support DART in the upcoming referendum.
- --- Lowenberg attended a breakfast discussion meeting on judicial selection hosted by Dean Royce Hanson of UTD School of Social Sciences. Unfortunately, one of the three panelists, Fred Meyers, and a majority of attendees, many of whom are state court judges, do not favor a merit system such as LWV-T advocates.
- --- Lowenberg represented LWV-D at a city sponsored meeting, chaired by Lori Palmer and Craig Holcomb, to explore ways the city might deal with the AIDS crisis. Palmer is to send follow-up information. If there are other meetings of this group, Regina Skoda will be LWV-D's designated representative.
- --- Cards sent to Julie Nice, former Metrocrest Unit Leader, and Liz Cowles, former board member and current Women's Council president, both of whom had had surgery recently.
- -- Letters received from LWVUS and LWV-T congratulating us on our 50th anniversary. It has been suggested that the souvenir program, with a note, be sent to the 25 + year members who were not at the celebration. Also, Mary Fugger will provide copies of the video so it can be "checked out" from the office.
- --- Update on the DCLU proposal re voter registration at Red Bird Mall: Linda Swift of LWVUS Litigation Department says she knows of no similar lawsuits but that LWVUS would try to support us if we decide to pursue it, and might be able to help with expenses. Because Dallas County Elections Department carried out voter registration on February 6 at Red Bird Mall, it was suggested that Ann Folz check with Bruce Sherbet, Director of D.Co. Elections, as to whether registration was done with the mall management permission or inside a department store located at the mall. Folz and Koblitz will gather information and report back at the May board meeting.
- --- State Council will be held from noon Saturday, April 16 to 12:30, Sunday, April 17, in Sherman. LWV-D delegates will probably be Lowenberg and Lerner; however, as many members as possible are urged to attend some or all of the proceedings as observers. Workshops on long range planning, Texas Constitutional Revision, and the state study of the Mentally Ill are scheduled. Let Lowenberg know if you can go for some, or all, of the sessions.
- --- LWV-T's Silent Auction will culminate at state Council. Fliers listing items for bid are being distributed at March and April unit meetings. The March VOTER article includes a bid form. Encourage participation!

Lowenberg's complete report is on file.

5. Action: Mary Koblitz reported letters and personal calls to our two Senators urging that the Senate move quickly to ratify the Intermediate Nuclear Forces Treaty between the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. without adding crippling amendments.

A statement will be made to the city council supporting the city's new rehabilitation ordinance. Koblitz will be unable to appear but will ask someone else to do it. Copies of the statement will be mailed ahead of time to council members and Winston Evans of the city staff.

The Glad Bag-a-Thon will be April 23rd. Only five people have signed up to help. How many more can we get? Debbie Pruitt needs a count so as to apply for a location.

LWV-D's political committee has on hand only $30 which was not enough for a mailing to contributors on the merit selection of judges—to rally opposition to the nonbinding referendum on the Democratic Primary ballot. Koblitz urged board members to talk about this issue with neighbors and friends. The Dallas Morning News opposes the referendum, as well as the Republican Party's "English Only" referendum. The League has no position on the latter. The complete report is on file.

6. Organization: Nancy Monson reported that the Dallas Chamber has been sent names of League members who volunteered for DCC committees. If you do not hear from them soon, report to Monson.

The Annual Meeting will be at the Science Place on April 30, from 9:45-2:00, and will cost $15 including lunch. Monson also reminded the board about the Women Helping Women Awards dinner, asking that a League table be requested. She was taking checks ($35) for the dinner.

Monson asked for a decision on when and how to market the handbook covers at the LWVUS convention in Denver in June. She feels it is a good opportunity to make some money for LWV-D, as we have reached the point where sales represent clear profit for us. All sales would be subject to Colorado sales tax of 11.8%. Monson moved that LWV-D sell handbook covers at the Denver convention for a minimum price of $4 plus Colorado tax, and further that payment of the $30 fee for space at the publications room be authorized. The motion was seconded and passed.

- 7. Unit Organization: Sandy Greyson reported that the unit leaders were enthusiastic about changing U.L. and membership chairmen's orientation from August to May and combining it with the last briefing of the year.
- 8. VOTER: Nancy Monson reported for Cai Glackin. The VOTER "week" has been changed from the week of the 21st of March to the 28th with the mailing scheduled for April 1. The deadline for material remains March 8 but an extension could be made as late as the 15th. Call Cai for space requirements as needed.
- 9. Voter's Guide: Ariail Gores reported the distribution and sale of Voters Guides for the March 8 Primary. Of particular interest, the Dallas Times Herald made an in kind contribution of 10,000 copies which they delivered to the Dallas County Community College District and the Dallas Public Library System, 5000 each. There were 19 paid subscribers for a total of 12,585 copies at $.25 each or $3,146.25.

The filing deadline for the May 7 School Board election is March 22. Gores submitted the questions that had been used previously for School Board Election Voters Guides. After some discussion, it was decided that it would be appropriate to do some checking to determine if those questions were still the best that could be asked. Mary Koblitz moved that an ad hoc committee meet to approve the questions for the Guides. The committee is to consist of the officers and concerned board members who wish to participate. The motion was seconded and carried. This procedure was necessary because of the tight schedule. The complete report is on file.

10. Program: Molly Van Ort urged everyone to attend the unit meetings on "Solutions for Survival" on March 9 and 10 and the Agriculture consensus meetings on the 23rd and 24th.

She then reviewed reports from the units on Local Program Planning. The recommendations were very scattered and did not focus on any subject with sufficient interest to merit the board's recommending it. She therefore moved that the board recommend a continuation of the Citizen Participation Procedures study for 1988-89 and that no additional recommendation for program study be made, but the membership should be encouraged to propose a local study from the not recommended list. The motion was seconded and passed. The complete report is on file.

- 11. Citizen Participation Study: Sandy Greyson reported for Pam Stein. Responses to the questionnaires which were sent to various cities and Leagues of Women Voters have been received and these, together with local interviews, are being summarized as the basis for the unit meetings. Stein is writing a section on background, i.e., what the city council has done in the past and what it is doing now regarding citizen participation. Rebecca Bergstresser is compiling the other information. The units will begin with a questionnaire to let members know how much they know (or how little), and the format will be a sort of "game plan."
- 12. Community Relations: Nancy Armour reported for Merle Wensley. During the month of February, releases on the 50th Anniversary Gala were sent to all media. The News and Herald ran stories on February 25, the News having a good interview with Pearl Wincorn. Joe Laird, News photographer, took pictures at the Gala for the paper's "High Profile." The Texas Woman's News ran a notice of the Gala in the Calendar column and also a reprint of "Super Tuesday: Boom or Bust?". News release was sent to the Richardson and Addison papers re Charlene Howell's appearance on the College Satellite Network program February 18, in connection with the Texas Debates at SMU. Other news releases: National Security unit meetings to all media; annual meeting with author Lawrence Wright ("In the New World, Growing Up With America, 1960-1984" to monthlies. April release will be sent to all media with detailed information on the annual meeting.
- 13. Development: Paula Peppard reported that the first comprehensive appeal for 1988 will be made the middle of March with a "mailing party" scheduled for March 14, 9:30 a.m. at the League office.

LWV-Dallas March 1988 Board Meeting Minutes, p. 5

- 14. Mental Health/Mental Retardation Study: Pat Smith reported that plans are going forward for a panel discussion for the May meeting. She is checking the possible dates for a general meeting at the Scottish Rite Children's Hospital. There will be a committee meeting, Tuesday, March 8, 9:30 a.m., at Pat's home.
- 15. Budget Committee Report: Phyllis Gould presented the 1988-89 budget as prepared by her committee. After a brief discussion of some of the items, the board agreed to present the budget to the annual meeting, as proposed.
- 16. Program Review Committee Report: In the absence of the chairman, Jeanne Clinchy, Molly Van Ort led a general discussion of the recommendations of the committee on support positions in Local Program. The board agreed to the recommendations with the exception of those changes and deletions under Human Resources. It was the consensus of those present that all of the support positions under Human Resources should be kept. The board did, however, agree that two editorial changes should be approved:

Section B. 4. Omit the last word on the first line ("support"). Reason: it is redundant.

Remove Section D. 6. Reason: This is a repeat of Section B. 3. b. The complete report is on file.

The meeting was adjourned at 1:30 p.m.

Respectfully submitted, Jean E. Johnson Secretary
