LUBBOCK -- A percussion and dance concert, a challenge both for choreographers and musicians, will take place at 8:15 p.m., Thursday, Nov. 18, in the Texas Tech University Theatre.

The Texas Tech Percussion Ensemble, under the direction of Prof. Ronald J. Dyer, will perform a series of unusual works, ranging from a tilting tribute to lovers of Strauss, "The Waltz," to a striking ritual based on Aztec legend, "Tocatta."

Highlight of the percussion performance will be "Ballet Mechanique" by George Antheil. This includes the sounds of airplane motors and electric doorbells as well as a four-piano quartet featuring members of the Texas Tech music faculty, Georgette Gettel, Lora Deahl, Jane Ann Wilson and William Dawson.

Choreographers for the concert are Diana Moore and Peggy Willis of the Texas Tech faculty in dance. Under their tutelage student dancers will perform ballet, modern, jazz, comic, serious and light-hearted works.

The dancers and percussionists performed together for the first time last year, and the success of that event encouraged them to arrange for the 1976 concert.

Tickets, at $2.50 for adults or $1.50 for students, are available in the University Center ticket booth. Phone 742-3610. They also may be purchased off campus at Gramophone, Flip-Side Record, Century Bookstore, Reader's World and Michael's Imported Foods and Deli. (cq)

LUBBOCK -- Dean John R. Bradford of the Texas Tech University College of Engineering has been invited to attend a National Meeting on "Science, Technology and Development" to be held in the Department of State Nov. 17.

The invitation came from Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who said that leaders of both government and private groups will participate.

"The purpose of this meeting," Kissinger's letter said, "is to begin the process of consultation and interaction with non-governmental groups to prepare for the United Nations Conference on Science and Technology for Development scheduled for 1979."

He said the 1976 meeting and a similar one scheduled for 1977 will "seek to mobilize and focus America's best talent on the issues of technology and development, both in advanced and between advanced and developing countries."

Regional preparatory conferences will be held in 1978.

Kissinger will address the meeting, as will Guyford Stever, President Gerald Ford's chief science adviser, and Daniel Parker, administrator of the Agency for International Development.

Afternoon sessions will be devoted to panel discussions.

LUBBOCK -- Beware!

The Country Fair at The Museum of Texas Tech University Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 6-7, may be so much fun visitors will want to stay and stay and stay.

Activities changing every hour or half-hour promise as much entertainment for youngsters as for adults. For grownups there will be music, style shows, a "42" tournament and shopping for handcrafted or home-baked items that are available only at such a fair.

For youngsters there will be cartoons, a puppet show, a special planetarium showing, the music and the peek into the past through the style show.

The Women's Council of the West Texas Museum Association organized the fair as a fun, fund-raising event based on the theme "never a dull moment."

The fair opens to the public at 10 a.m., Saturday, and runs till 9 p.m. that day and from 1 to 5 p.m., Sunday. There will be a preview Friday, Nov. 5, following the annual meeting of the West Texas Museum Association. That dinner meeting begins at 7 p.m.

At 10 a.m., Saturday, there will be, for children, the first of five showings of Walt Disney cartoons, "Moving Day," "Band Concert" and "Don Donald." The cartoons also will be shown at noon, 4:30 and 8 p.m., Saturday, and at 2 p.m., Sunday.

A puppet show by the Texas Tech Puppeteers, under the direction of Prof. Peggy H. Bright, will be featured at 11 a.m. and 4 p.m., Saturday, and at 3 p.m., Sunday.

The only opportunity to see Dean's Magic will be at 10:30 a.m., Saturday. But there will be a children's special planetarium show, "Magic Sky," at 1:30 and 4:30 p.m., Saturday, and at 4 p.m., Sunday. The regular Moody Planetarium show, "Fall and Winter Constellations," will be shown at 3 p.m., Saturday and Sunday.

Special music will begin with soloist Marilyn Campbell singing at 11:30 a.m., Saturday. Sharena Gray, pianist, will perform at 2 p.m., and the Lubbock Christian College Good Time Singers at 7 p.m., Saturday. On Sunday the Dunbar Panjammers will perform at 3:30 p.m.

The style show from the Heritage Costumes Collection at The Museum will start at 3:30 p.m., Saturday, and at 2:30 p.m., Sunday.

The "42" tournament will begin at 1 p.m., Saturday, and participants must make reservations to participate in this event.

There will be, in addition, food, including hot dogs, lemonade and coffee to eat at the fair. And for the freezer there will be for sale breads, casseroles, cakes and other desserts. For the pantry there will be pickles and relishes, jams, jellies and other goodies.

For Christmas or giving at any time there will be fine art, knitting, needlepoint, stitchery and crocheted work. For holiday festivities there will be tree, door and centerpiece decorations, favors and place cards. And there will be demonstrations of crafts used to create the decorations.

LUBBOCK -- Dr. Martha Hackley, project director for the Texas Education Agency, cited the magnitude of the business of the public school system to keynote the Education Week observance at Texas Tech University.

Hackley's lecture on "The Fewest Tears Possible--First Year Teaching" inaugurated the observance, which will continue through Friday. The Student Council for the College of Education at Texas Tech is coordinating the 26 sessions, which are led by the Texas Tech faculty and Lubbock area educators.

The lecturer's message emphasized teachers as public servants, the need to listen to students, finding the origin of attitudes, classroom control, positive discipline and job opportunities.

According to Hackley, "The problems in education create the need for teachers to be informed on educational issues in order to prepare an aggressive approach."

Information booths containing materials about the College of Education are located in the University Center Courtyard during Education Week. Seven organizations in the college are represented at the booths from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. through Friday.

The Awards and Recognition Dinner and Open House at 6:30 p.m., Friday, in the University Center Ballroom will conclude the week of speeches and displays.

Tickets for the dinner are $5, including a $1.50 tax-deductible contribution to the College of Education, and can be purchased from any Education Council member.

ATTENTION: Agricultural Editors

LUBBOCK -- The economic uncertainty affecting agricultural credit as well as current fiscal and monetary policies will be discussed at the fourth annual Bankers Agricultural Credit Conference at Texas Tech University Dec. 3-4.

Dr. J. Wayland Bennett, conference coordinator, said that bankers will hear reports on the outlook for 1977 production costs and the market potential for Texas agricultural commodities.

Worldwide production problems, economic conditions and national policies affecting the export demand for primary Texas agricultural products will be discussed, Bennett said.

Bennett is director of industry relations for the Texas Tech College of Agricultural Sciences.

The conference will begin with registration at 6 p.m. in the ballroom of the University Center Dec. 3.

Sessions beginning at 8:45 a.m., Saturday, Dec. 4, will deal with the borrower's points of view, future trends in capital requirements, and the outlook for 1977 in cotton, grains, oil seeds and livestock.

Kenneth Irwin, president of the Gruver State Bank, is president of the conference board of directors, and Gene McLaughlin, vice president of the Security State Bank and Trust Company of Ralls, is vice president. Irwin will make the opening address at the conference.

LUBBOCK -- The Texas Society of Architects has elected Texas Tech University professor Elo J. Urbanovsky an Honorary Member for his more than 40 years of environmental improvement through landscape architecture.

"By this designation we seek to recognize his outstanding leadership and efforts to improve the quality of life in his community, state and nation by promoting a better environment," Theodore S. Maffitt, Jr., president of the Texas architects, said in making the announcement of the selection.

The honor is the highest awarded by the Texas Society.

The honorary membership was announced publicly at a special awards luncheon at noon, Friday, Nov. 5, at the Fairmont Hotel in Dallas, as part of the society's annual meeting.

Urbanovsky was nominated by the Lubbock chapter of the American Institute of Architects (AIA). In part, the letter of nomination from Howard W. Schmidt, chairman of the AIA Chapter Honors Committee, and Raymond D. Powell, president of the Lubbock chapter, read:

"Prior to his (Urbanovsky's) arrival on (Texas Tech) campus in 1949, very little attention had been given to landscaping. He literally fought for budgets to plant, irrigate and maintain grass, trees and flowering plants extensively over the sprawling 500-acre academic campus.

"There is no question that the beauty of the campus as it is enjoyed by the students, faculty, citizens and thousands of visitors has inspired untold numbers to improve their own environments off campus."

A graduate of Texas A&M University in 1930, Urbanovsky later attended the University of Massachusetts as a graduate fellow. He came to Texas Tech after more than 10 years of experience in landscape architecture with Texas A&M, the United States Department of Agriculture regional office, the San Antonio public schools and the Veterans' Administration Hospitals of Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi.

Urbanovsky was chairperson of the Department of Park Administration, Landscape Architecture and Horticulture at Texas Tech, 1949-'75. He retired last year.

In 1955, the landscape architect founded the Southwest Park and Recreation Training Institute.

"His present office is adjacent to the landscape architecture laboratories, and he is constantly challenging faculty and students as he works on additional graduate programs for the department.

"He also serves as a consulting landscape architect for off-campus projects and is engaged in the design and implementation of the landscaping for a recently completed multi-million dollar Texas Instruments, Inc., manufacturing plant in Lubbock," Schmidt and Powell wrote.

LUBBOCK -- A University of Georgia educator, Dr. Paul Torrance, says recent studies show that today's school children are functioning at a higher level of creative thinking than in earlier years.

"I am afraid that the big testing companies have been giving a somewhat biased picture of what today's high school students are like, and I would like to present some of my views concerning the matter."

Torrance, head of the Department of Educational Psychology at the University of Georgia, Athens, will present those views at 1:30 p.m., Thursday (Nov. 4), at the Texas Tech University Center as a highlight of the Education Week observance. His topic will be "College Students of the Future: Their Abilities, Achievements, and Images of the Future."

Torrance has been head of the Department of Educational Psychology at the University of Georgia since 1966. Prior to that he was director of the Bureau of Educational Research at the University of Minnesota. There he developed for eight years the Minnesota Studies of Creative Behavior.

The week's activities will conclude with the College of Education Awards and Recognition Dinner and Open House, 6:30 p.m., Friday.

The observance at Texas Tech was coordinated by the college's Student Council and led by education faculty and Lubbock area educators.

LUBBOCK -- "The Royal Hunt of the Sun," Peter Shaffer's play about the Spanish conquest of the Inca nation, will be presented at the Texas Tech University Theatre at 8:15 p.m., Nov. 19-23.

"The play combines historical fact with dialogue, a striking set, brilliant costumes, music and dance," Tommy Culpepper, assistant promotion director at the University Theatre, said.

Most of the play takes place in the upper province of the Inca Empire, where Francisco Pizarro confronts the sovereign Inca of Peru, Atahualpa. The Spanish troops, in search of gold, massacre the Inca Indians.

According to Shaffer in an explanation of his play, "The greatest tragic factor in history is man's apparent need to mark the intensity of his reaction to life by joining a band. A band, to give itself definition, must find a rival, or an enemy."

Shaffer is a British playwright who originally wrote detective novels. Other plays by Shaffer include "Five Finger Exercise" and a double bill, "Private Year-Public Eye."

"The Royal Hunt of the Sun" has been performed on Broadway and a recent movie also was made.

LUBBOCK -- Man's abuse of his natural environment dates back to the 17th century and maybe even beyond that. How he did it and what the future might hold is featured in a mixed media production at Texas Tech University.

"To My Beloved Earth", a presentation of the Speech Communications Division, is a combination of tapes, slide shows and readers quoting environmental literature through the 17th century.

"The presentation will be made without the help of sets or costumes," said Dr. Vera L. Simpson, associate professor of speech and theatre arts and program supervisor.

Performances will be held at 8:15 p.m., Nov. 11-14, in Media Room 101 of the Mass Communications Building. A matinee show is also scheduled at 3 p.m., Nov. 15, in the same room.

Tickets are available in Room 263 of the Mass Communication Building or by calling 742-3911. Student tickets are 50¢ and general admission is $1.

The production was recently presented at a Texas Speech Communication-Association meeting in Austin and a National Association of Foreign Student Affairs session in New Orleans.

Directed by Val Hildreth, the production's sound effects are managed by assistant director Pat Spiegelberg, and light effects by Kip Hyde.

LUBBOCK -- Under the recently revised Texas Family Code fathers may be charged with support of an illegitimate child, once paternity is established.

Support of the illegitimate child was one of the significant changes under the code, as reported in the "Texas Family Code Symposium" by Texas Tech University's "Law Review." The supplement is designed to get needed information on the code to practicing attorneys.

In October, 1976, "Law Review" published the "Texas Family Code Symposium Supplement," including amendments passed in 1975. The publication also contains interpretations of the amendments written by law professors throughout the state who are experts in a particular area of family law.

Approximately 2,800 copies have been sold and another printing has been ordered. According to Frank Skillern, faculty advisor for "Law Review," almost every law school in the state is requiring use of the "Symposium" and "Supplement" as textbooks in their family law or marital property classes.

The volumes were partially financed by the Family Law Section of the State Bar Association.

Paperback copies of the "Symposium" can be ordered from "Law Review," Texas Tech University Law School, Lubbock, Texas 79409. Cost is $6.65, including tax and mailing charges. Cost for the paperback "Supplement" is $4.45, including tax and mailing; and bound copies of the code and supplement can be obtained for $18.38.

Although the "Symposium" was intended for lawyers, it could be of interest to anyone wanting to know Texas family law in areas such as marriage, divorce and children, according to Walter B. Huffman, editor-in-chief of the "Supplement" and editor of "Law Review."

"Law Review" is an extracurricular activity in which students can participate by invitation only. Members are chosen from the top 15 per cent of their class. Covering general topics of law, three issues of "Law Review" are published yearly.

LUBBOCK--Dr. Estuardo Nunez, Faye LaVerne Bumpass lecturer, will speak at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday (Nov. 9), and at 4 p.m., Thursday (Nov. 11), at Texas Tech University. Both lectures will be in the Senate Room of the Texas Tech University Center.

His topic Tuesday will be "Ricardo Palma, maestro de la tradicion en Hispanoamerica." Thursday he will speak on "La imagen de Hispanoamerica en la literatura espanola."

Nunez, attorney and former director of the National Library of Peru, is founder and director of the Institute of Literary Studies at the University of San Marcos in Lima. He also is director of Centro de Investigaciones Peruanas in the Instituto Raul Porras Barrenechea, a division of the university.

A member of the Peruvian Academy of Language and president of the Latin American Association of Germanic Studies, Nunez has won three major literary prizes and published more than 20 books and monographs dealing with Peruvian literature in comparison with other Western literatures.

He represented the University of San Marcos at International literary meetings in Grenoble, Madrid and Philadelphia.

Nunez, lectures are sponsored by the Latin American Area Studies in the Texas Tech Department of Classical and Romance Languages under an annual lecture series named in honor of Dr. Faye LaVerne Bumpass, Horn professor of classical and Romance Languages.

The donor has provided an annual $1,000 grant to bring a speaker to the campus each academic year to address students and faculty interested in Latin American studies.

Speakers are selected by a three-person committee from the Latin American Area Studies Program.

LUBBOCK--Lawyer-turned-film-maker Frederick Wiseman, creator of such documentaries as "Welfare," "Hospital," "Titicut Follies" and "High School," will speak on his cinematic craft at 8:15 p.m., Thursday, Nov. 11, in the University Center Theatre at Texas Tech University.

Emmy-winner Wiseman will discuss "American Institutions: The Making of a Documentary." Tickets are $1 for Texas Tech students with IDs and $2 for the public.

Two of Wiseman's films will be shown at Texas Tech during the week. A free showing of "Hospital" will begin at 8:15 p.m., Monday, Nov. 8, in the University Center Coronado Room. A free showing of "High School" will begin 8:15 p.m., Wednesday, Nov. 10, in the University Center Theatre. An informal discussion with Wiseman will follow the Wednesday film.

For more information, phone the UC Cultural Events Office at 742-3611.

A graduate of Yale Law School, Wiseman turned serious film maker in 1966. He was inspired by his dissatisfaction with Hollywood fantasies.

His move into film also proved to be an inspiration for many critics. Wiseman has since won three Emmy Awards and has been nominated for several more. His films have been shown at festivals in Venice, Edinburgh, Manheim, Florence and New York, as well as in movie theaters and on national television.

"No contemporary maker of films, whether for theatrical release or for television, engages my emotions so fully or consistently as Fred Wiseman does," said "Life Magazine" critic Richard Shickel.

Gary Arnold of the "Washington Post" called Wiseman's films "the most urgent, intelligent and socially significant of the decade."

to presentation)

LUBBOCK -- The West Texas Museum Association (WTMA) Friday night presented Action Awards to three prominent Lubbock residents, Mrs. Helen DeVitt Jones, Mrs. Maxine Blankenship and Robert A. Nash.

The awards presented at the association's annual meeting are for outstanding cultural achievement in the High Plains area.

The association also named officers, elected 14 trustees and filled two unexpired trustee terms.

J. C. Chambers was elected president. Other new officers are: J. T. Talkington, vice president; Mrs. Dalton Tarwater, secretary; and W. R. Collier, treasurer. They will take office Jan. 1.

Elected to serve on the Board of Trustees through 1980 are Eugene Alderson, Mrs. John J. Christmann, Coffee Connor, Giles Dalby, Christine DeVitt, Mrs. Richard Dickey, Rex Fuller, Kent Hance, Rodney Joy, Carroll McDonald, Hoyse McMurtry, L. G. Pierce, John Scoggin and David Vigness. Douglas Boren will fill an unexpired term ending Dec. 31, 1977, and Harold Luce was elected to fill a trustee's term ending Dec. 31, 1978.

In presenting the Action Award to Mrs. Jones, F. William Holder said that "her wise and visionary generosity in the arts and humanities has enriched the quality of life for all of us." She was cited for her work in education, music, theater, the visual arts and mental development.

Mrs. Russell Bean presented the award to Mrs. Blankenship and cited her for her work with The Museum, the Texas Historical Commission, the Ranching Heritage Center and the Texas Tech Foundation. Mrs. Blankenship has served on the historical commission since 1966 and now is its president. She has been a member of the Board of Trustees of the WTMA since 1962 and was secretary of the Executive Committee for the last two years. She has been a member of the Board of Overseers of the Ranching Heritage Center since 1969 and until recently was coordinator for historic furnishings for the center.

In presenting the Action Award to Nash, John Logan told the membership that Nash " does not have the word 'no' in his vocabulary."

He holds the 1972 Lubbock Citizen of the Year award, both the Lubbock Advertising Club Silver Medal Award and the Alpha Kappa Psi Distinguished Service Award for 1971, and the Red Raider Club Distinguished Contribution Award for 1970.

LUBBOCK--Dr. Grover E. Murray, University Professor of geosciences at Texas Tech University, has been named president-elect of the prestigious Association of Professional Geological Scientists (APGS), President John D. Haun announced today.

Former Texas Tech President Murray will assume his office in January, 1977.

The national association, formerly the American Institute of Professional Geologists, was formed in 1963 to strengthen the geological sciences as a profession, to establish and continue evaluation of geological scientists, to formulate ethical standards and to monitor governmental and other activities affecting the profession.

Murray will also serve as chairman of the APGS Advisory Board.

Other 1977 officers will include President John A. Taylor, consulting geologist, Oklahoma City, Okla.; Vice President Wilson G. Harris Jr., president of Orion Energy Corp., Mt. Vernon, Ill.; Secretary-Treasurer Larry D. Woodfork, assistant state geologist, State of West Virginia; Editor C. E. Prouty, professor of geology, Michigan State University. The 1976 president, Dr. Haun, is professor of geology at Colorado School of Mines.

Murray is the second president to have been chosen from the Texas Tech faculty. Dr. Frank B. Conselman, retired professor of geosciences, served as head of the association in 1974.

APGS is headquartered in Golden, Colo., and counts more than 3,000 members.

Murray, Texas Tech president from 1966-'76, has served in several major professional leadership positions. A member of the National Science Board since 1968 and the National Advisory Committee on Oceans and Atmosphere since 1975, he has been president of the Society of Economic Paleontologists and Mineralogists (1963-'64), the American Association of Petroleum Geologists (1964-'65) and the Gulf Universities Research Corp. (1965-'66). He was also chairman of the U. S. National Committee on Geology (1964-'68).
