Wednesday.

To The Dearest, Sweetest Girl in the World:—

I wish that my pen could put on paper my feelings and emotions to-day, sweetheart. Your two letters were so dear to me, no one but you could have written them and no one could have had such a sweet way of saying things as you did.

I am glad the box of chocolates reached you in good condition, am sorry they failed to reach you Saturday, but I know they reached Muleshoe that day. But if you enjoyed them and once in a while thought of me, then I am most happy, for nothing gives me so much pleasure as to think of you and to try to do something to make you happy. If my poor letters are appreciated by you, I want you to know and feel that nothing I can write or say, approaches even to a small degree, my love and admiration for you, and I hope and pray that for years to come I may by word and deed show you how much you are to me and that I may make you as happy as you make me.

No one but the dearest and best and noblest girl in the world could look at the house proposition as you did. My handkerchief had to come to my eyes relief, when I thought how gracious and sweet you are and how consoling your words are to me.

I want that house and want it badly for you, dearest one, and I will be greatly disappointed and worried if it slips away from us. There is no other house in town that can be rented as nice as this one and I was so pleased when I had a chance to get it. If it were a little better located, I would be tempted to try to buy it just to make sure no one could take it away from us.

But we will just have to hope and pray we will still get to use it. No one but you could have said the sweet things you did about the house proposition. You are the dearest girl in the world and we will find some place to live, won't we?

Have just had a hurry call to abunathy and must "say
the rest of my say" next time

Good bye precious one.

Yours
M.C.

WEATHER INDICATIONS

New Orleans, La., June 18.—Government weather forecast:

East Texas: Wednesday and Thursday fair.

West Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas and Oklahoma: Wednesday and Thursday fair.

(Full weather report on Page 12.)

I HAVEN'T told our secret, dear,
Since my good-bye to you;
But flowers and birds were singing it,

And flags and ribbons flinging it,
And golden sunshine bringing it
Down every breeze that blew.

It filled me as we crossed the pier
To march aboard the boat
With every band a-playing it,
The stepping feet a-saying it,
The singing tars belaying it;
Filled eyes and heart and throat.

The story still goes on by night
Though all the bunting's furled;
The tightening ropes are rattling it,
The speeding waves are prattling it,
The whispering waves are tattling it
And telling all the world.

I know when we get where they fight

And beckoning death shall call,
Where bursting steel is shelling it,
And flaming guns are belling it,
And deadly hate is helling it,
Our love will last them all.
