A photograph of a piece of perforated paper, likely a page from a book or a document. The paper is light-colored and has a grid of small, evenly spaced holes. A vertical crease runs down the center of the page, suggesting it was once folded. The holes are arranged in a regular pattern, and the paper appears to be made of a thin, slightly textured material.

A photograph of a perforated metal plate, likely a component from a vintage vehicle. The plate is light-colored, possibly aluminum or steel, and shows signs of wear, including discoloration and small pits. The word "DIESEL" is punched into the metal in a large, bold, sans-serif font, spanning the top half of the plate. Below it, the year "1951" is also punched in a similar bold, sans-serif font. The perforations are clean and precise, suggesting a high-quality manufacturing process. The overall appearance is that of a well-preserved but aged automotive part.
