Two detachments of twenty men each, will go out from Fort McKavett; one of them to scout between Fort Mannett and the South Fork and up that fork of the Llano, and the other along Chickasaw Creek from the spring down. A similar detachment from Fort Chadbourne will scout down the Colorado and across to the Concho. These detachments will move with not more than three light packs and will change their camps daily by a march of from three to six miles. Their provisions will be sent in their packs every five or seven days to meet them at stated points. The detachments will be relieved by similar ones from respective posts about every two weeks until the middle of July, when they will be discontinued unless otherwise ordered in the mean time. As far as possible, they will be commanded by officers, and when these are not available, the most trustworthy Non Commissioned Officers will be put in charge.
They must be conducted with vigilance & discretion, the object being to detect parties of Indians lurking about or crossing the head waters of the Concho, San Saba and Llano.
