

Thursday Feb. 18-27

Dear Ella this is just to tell you about my poinsettias. One is fine having 6 nice red leaves. One is beautiful having 8 large and 8 smaller red leaves. One doesn't amount to much having only 2 nice red leaves. The best one I set out on the porch to die and Ethel carried it in and put on a shelf in the kitchen window, and afterwards asked me to take it in my room where it would have more sun. It was the poorest looking one when I turned it out.

The green leaves have all fallen off the best one the next best has two fresh green leaves, and the other one has six green leaves. It has three branches, the others only one.

I am sending in a package in the same mail with this, my wedding present for Ruth. I have it all done up before I thought of sending the towel. If they are to be married in June you won't have to keep it long but I want you to send it and put it away till her wedding day.
