My Dear Cousin Dudley

Your letter of Thursday was received today and it was such a nice long letter. You were in Tuesday night and was very long, but I am going to make you the best letter I can under the circumstances. I have very little time to write, and every night I am engaged with my photography, which I find more and more successful. I am getting along first rate, and like it more and more every day. It is remarkable to see how few people will idle away time when the world is so full of interesting knowledge that is of value and that will keep you busy and full of searching out. I would like to see you here, but you do not discover anything of interest, something that will be of value. I would like to see you in the summer. I have been twice at it. I would like to see you here and to know what your real interests are. I have a few of the "print" and would arrive in time to see you at a very interesting time. I hope these notes will be of some use to you.
