

Mr. J. H. Wilkerson

Lubbock Texas,

of Lorraine as good as the fish? Were you able to make friends with Deucey Jr.? Lorraine and I are not much alike are we? She talks more easily than I do, and has more enthusiasm for living.

How did you happen to see Harold? Did you go around to see Clayton?

I am counting the days until this vacation is over. I will get as much work here to do as I can find. I can't seem to get up any enthusiasm over cooking or anything else.

We went to Houston yesterday. Papa bought another suit - a lighter weight one this time. Then they got a cover for the car top, which Clarence and I put on fairly satisfactorily. I got a very good hair cut after considerable walking about to locate a place. Mama and I made a few purchases, and I gave out, even though I had my comfortable shoes on. We had a considerable rain storm, which did not interfere with my ability to sleep on the way back. I wish that you might have some share of my ability to sleep, and I a part of your ability to remember - provided I could control it, remembering only informational facts.

Will you let me know how those Cookies turned?

I am going to leave it up to you about these letters. I want to be fair to you, as I have tried to be in the past, but I am not so sure that I made a good job of it. So do what you like about it.
mae.

Thursday.

Dear Gordon,

I drove papa to work this morning and then on to the post office. I think I had a feeling that I might hear from you. In the course of mail I found just the feelings I knew at once that you had remembered me. Several weeks for a new set, another reminder of your thoughtfulness of my small wishes. I don't find your letter. I am glad that you did write, I hate to think of the time when you never write to me. In fact I hate to think of the future. I try to think of anything I can do to fill my time — a career in physics is probably a year or I reach, golf, reorganization of my car, building up the most complete file of illustrations material to be found on the campus, learn to use the typewriter and stenome, all my reasons for further reference, trips to IH with all Passes, while vice probably serve only to remind me of other trips, trips that you have made pleasant for me.

You see I am afraid of the future either way's look. Even the job you want me to try for looks too big.

I am glad that you visited with Deany & family. Will you teach them to play poker? I hope that my suggestion that you teach me the game did not ruin your interest sufficiently to make me sorry about its effect so far as you are concerned. Was your recent impression
