

Sunset on Dun Laoghaire and Sandycove, Co. Dublin, Ireland.

Photo: Joan Willis, John Hinde Studios.

2/83

Dear Everyone,

Happy July The fourth

How was dinner at the Bakers?

We had steak, french fries,
peas, and real ice water tonight

They fixed it especially for us.

Thanks for the letters I really do enjoy them. It's going to take me forever
to catch up on everything.

How was Hollon's tonight? Has everyone seen Hollon's today?!

JOHN HINDE

Air Mail

Wilberson

4701-19th

Lubbock, Texas

79407

USA

DUN LAOGHAIRE, CO. DUBLIN: Dun Laoghaire is well-known to visitors from across the Irish Sea, being an important gateway to Ireland via the Holyhead sea route. With a population of nearly 50,000 and only 8 miles from Dublin, Dun Laoghaire still retains its holiday atmosphere. The town is well-provided with accommodation and every holiday amenity, and in the late summer and early autumn the magnificent sunsets over the sea are a particular delight to the evening stroller.

Printed and Published by John Hinde Limited, Cabinteely, Co. Dublin, Irish Republic.

I wore a great Brittan shirt tonight I soon changed it!! Love Ray