

Honesty.

"Honesty is the best policy," and honesty is of a good deal of use. Boys ought to obey their parents, and that is honesty. If boys do not be honest when, they will grow up to be bad men, and tell lies, swear, steal, and murder, then get put in prison, or be hung. So if boys are not honest when young, such things will happen. So if boys are honest when young, they will grow up to be good men. So all boys must be honest, and mind what their parents say. So "honesty is the best policy."

Alfred Tweed.

Hamden, Feb. 21, 1857.

Honesty.

No. 4.

Hamden, Feb. 21, 1853.

Alfred Tweed.